PUBLISHED BY THE JUNIOR CLASS
OF HEMPSTEAD HIGH SCHOOL
HEMPSTEAD, LONG ISLAND, NEW YORK

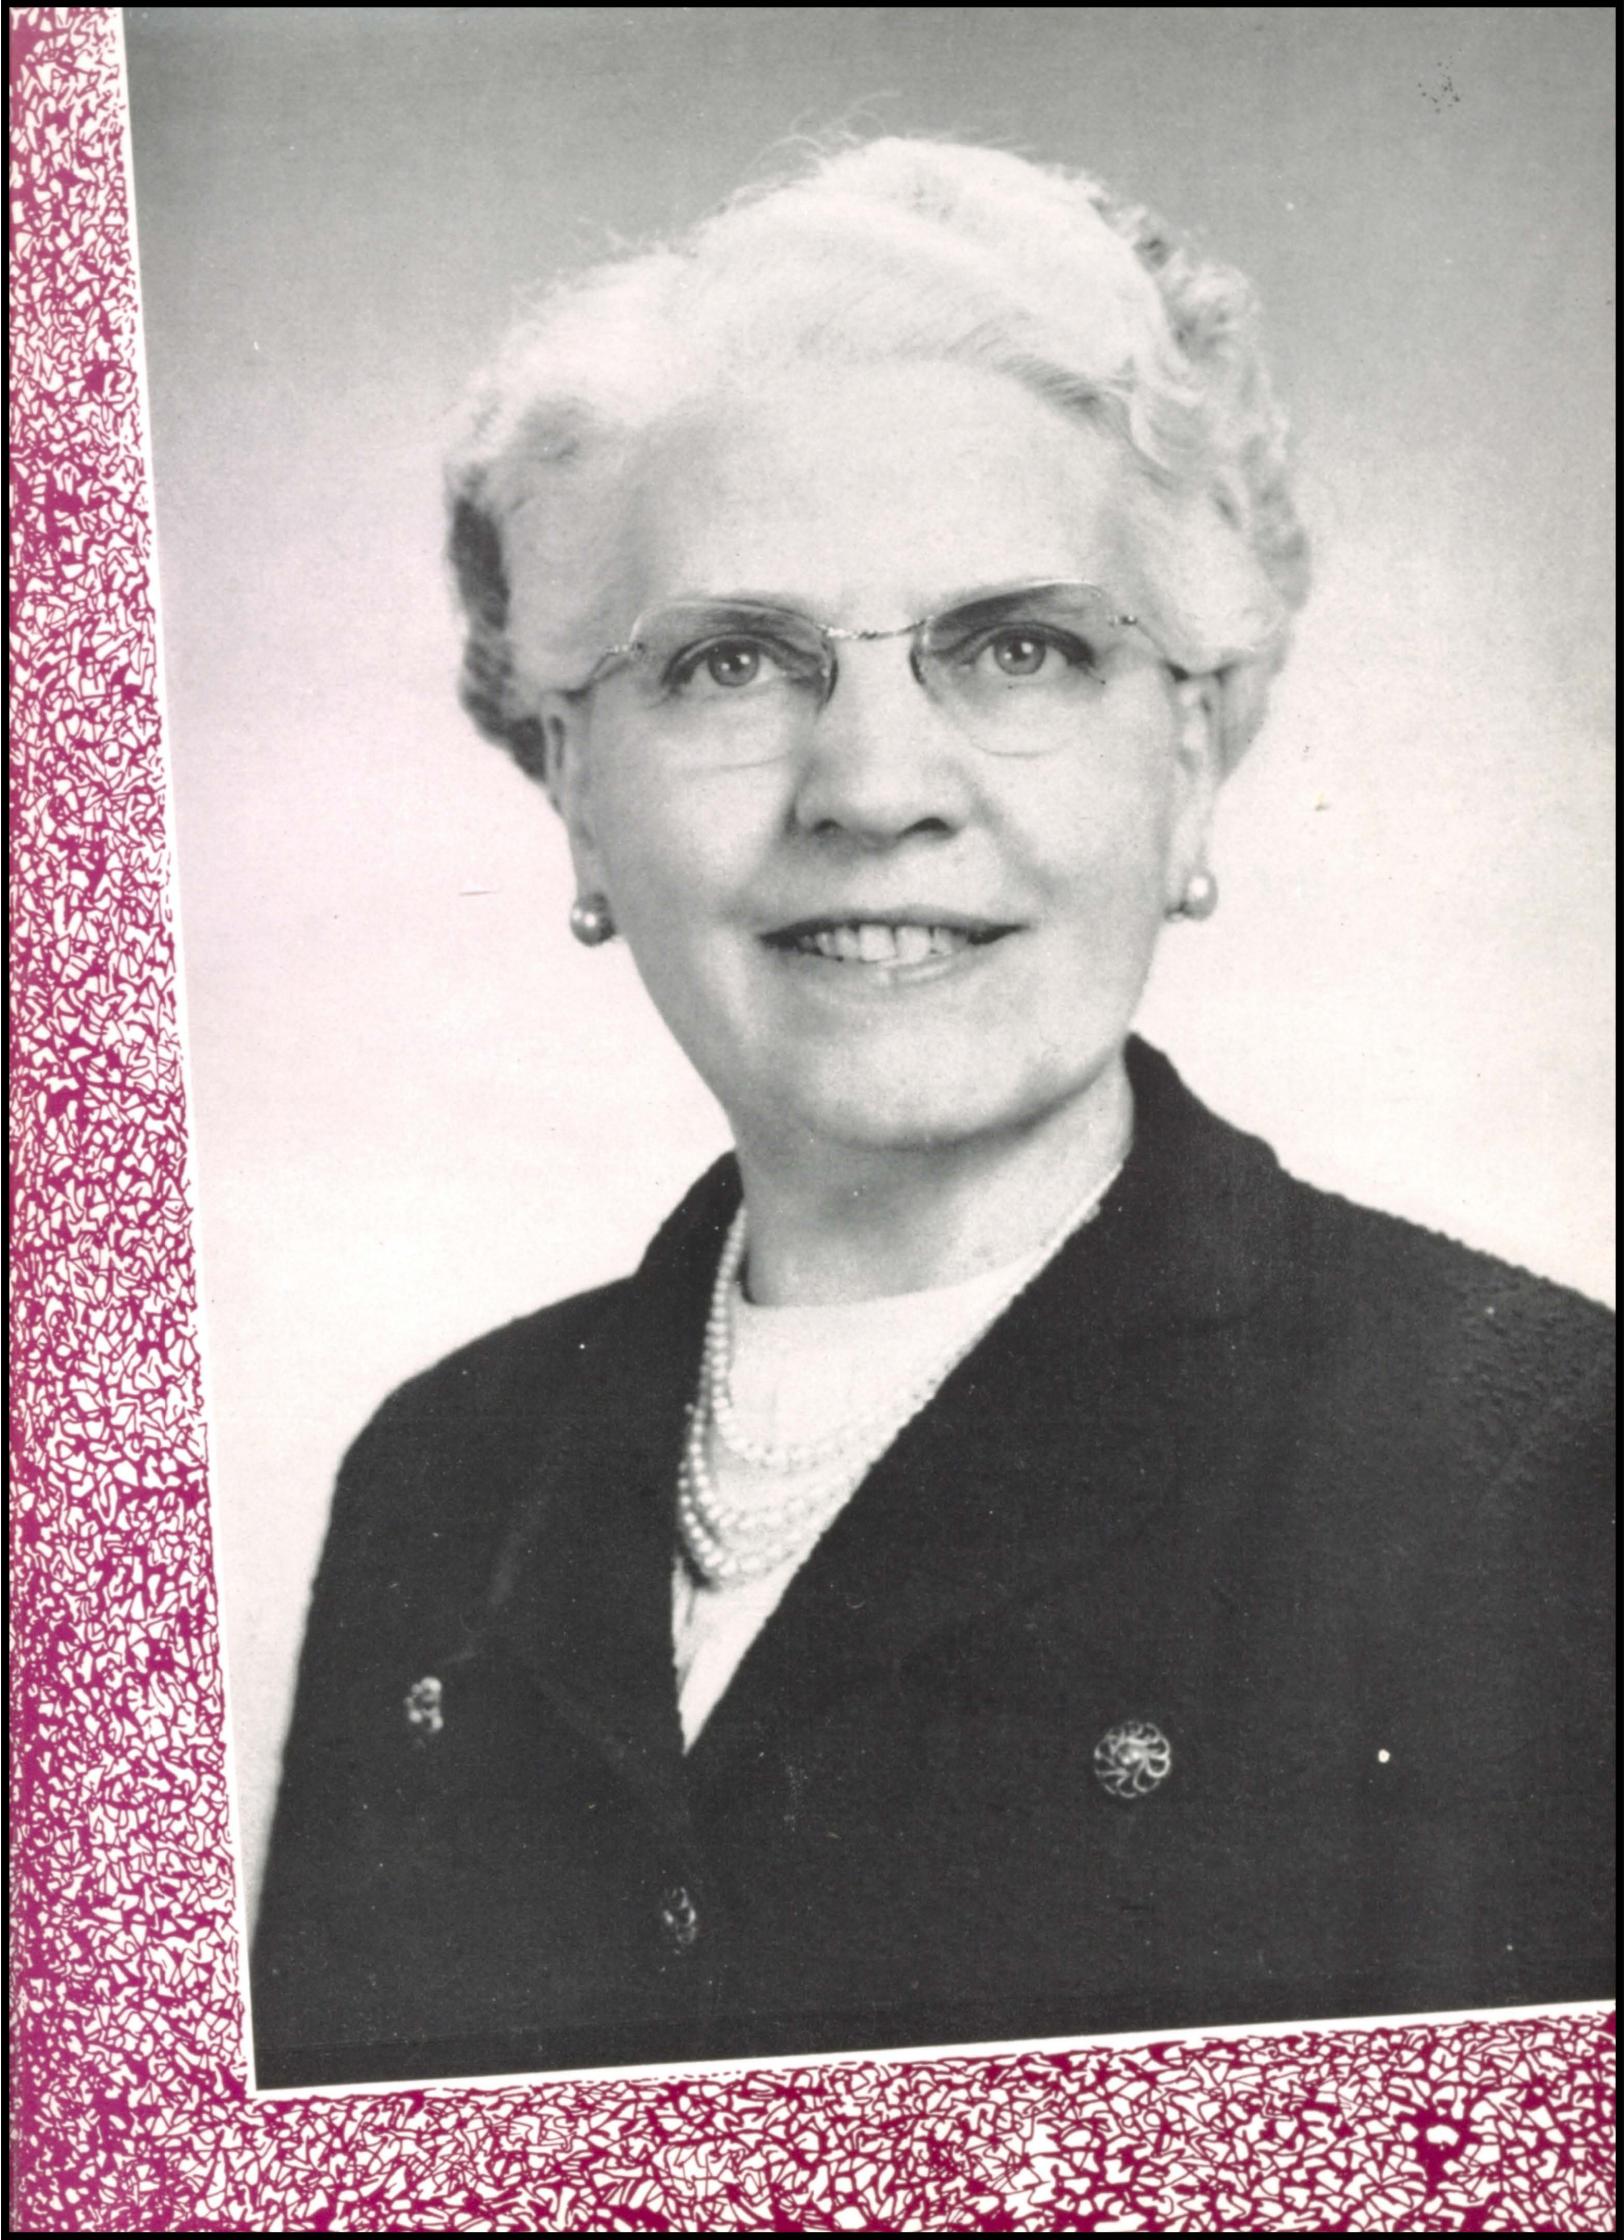

dedication

To Miss Anne Rowles whose cheerful smile, gracious manner, and enthusiastic interest have won the affection and respect of faculty and students of Hempstead High School, we dedicate this issue of the Colonial. In the years to come, she will continue to serve as an inspiration to all who had the good fortune to know her. In recognition of her fine qualities and years of dedicated service to the students, we take this means to pay her tribute.

We wish her well in the years to come.

foreword

"Youth is the season of hope, enterprise, and energy, to a nation as well as an individual."—W. R. Williams.

Our thoughts of youth are aptly expressed in those few words. Today's youth is preparing to accept the responsibilities that are a part of being the leaders of tomorrow. In the following pages, we have tried to record an accurate and memorable account of the activities at Hempstead High. The joys and sorrows, the defeats and victories of the past four years have prepared another group of future citizens to assume their responsible role in society. These four years have been spent in much the same manner as those spent by a teenager of a generation ago, who played on the basketball team, joined a club, and played in the orchestra just as the student of today is doing.

We offer this issue of the Colonial as evidence that the younger generation of today, essentially no different than that of years ago, is filled with the hope, enterprise, and energy upon which a nation is built.

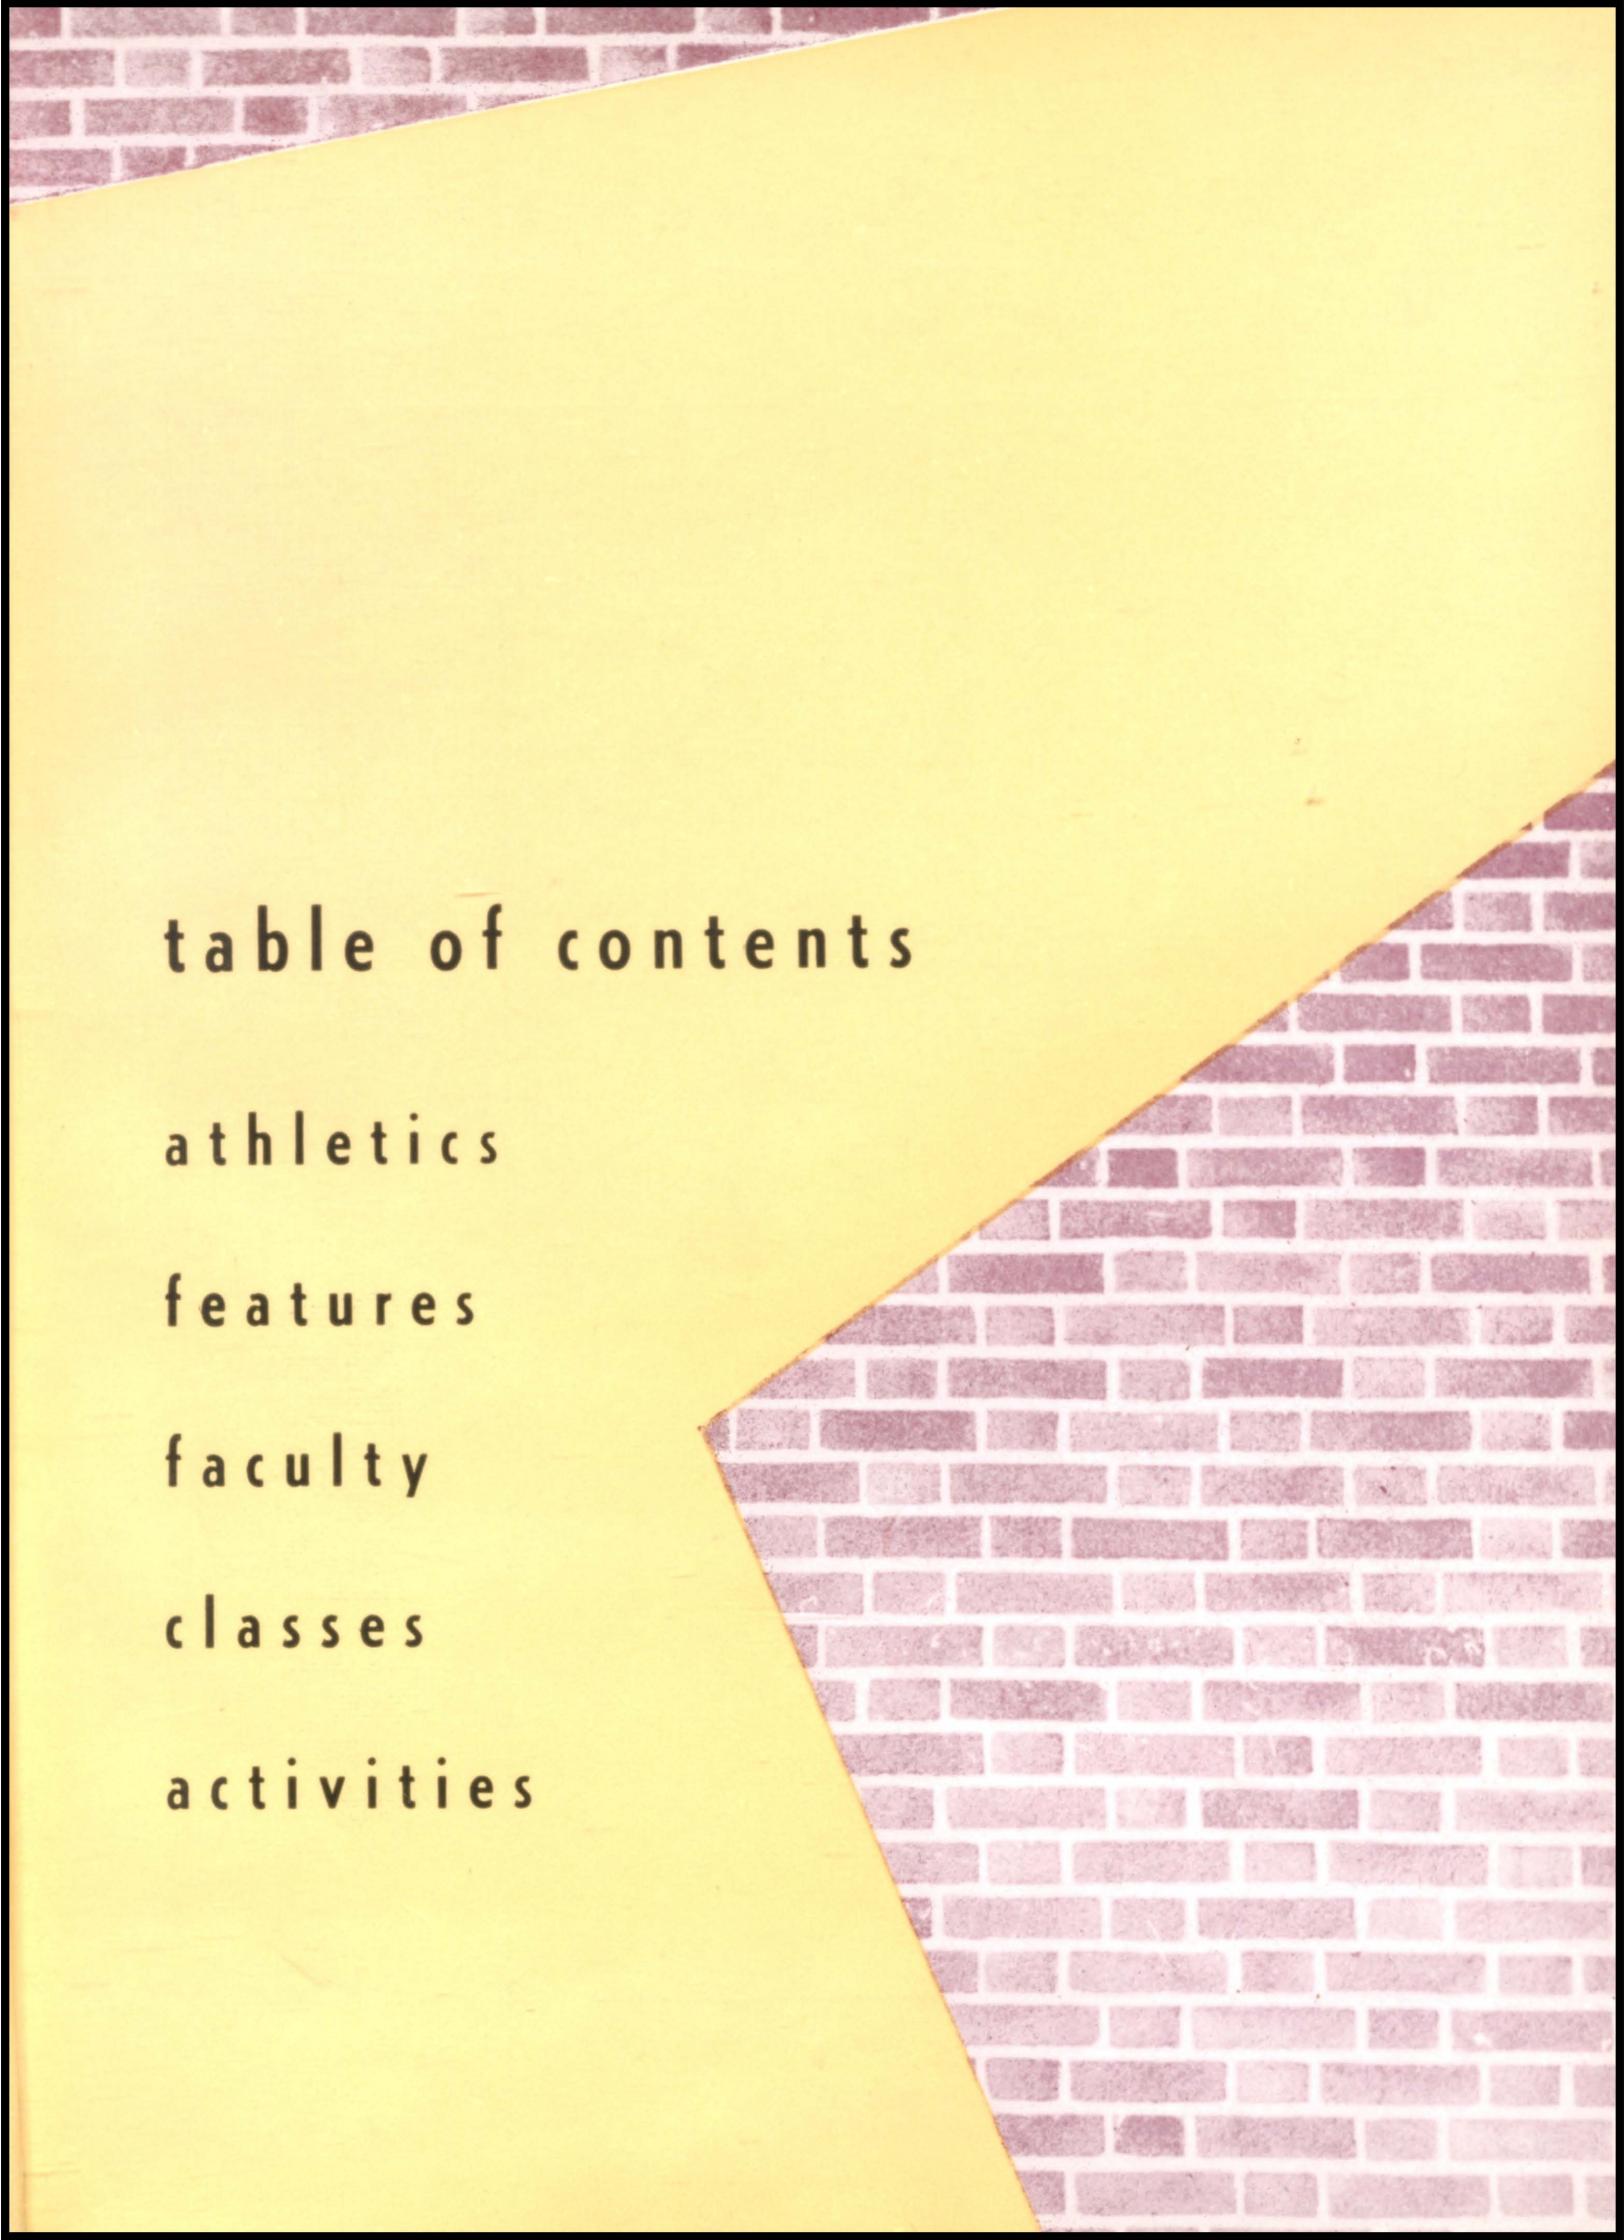

A large, bright yellow paper is placed over a brick wall. The paper is cut diagonally from the top right corner, revealing the brick pattern underneath. The text is printed in a simple, black, sans-serif font on the yellow paper.

Board of Education

THE backbone of our school system is the Board of Education. Its function is to give the utmost attention to all problems and policies relating to the Hempstead schools and to make fair and important decisions. The Board is assisted by Dr. W. Amos Kincaid, the Superintendent of Schools.

There are five members on the Board, one member of which is elected each year by the tax-paying citizens of the Village of Hempstead. The term for each member is five years. Each officer is nominated and elected by the members of the Board of Education itself. With the assistance of a clerk and an attorney, the five members meet regularly once a month in the superintendent's office, here at Hempstead High School. There are also special meetings called whenever the occasion arises.

In the main, the Board of Education works out any problem which may arise and makes final decisions on any and all policies which affect the running of the school. The Board is also entrusted with the expenditure of a great deal of money which is used wisely in maintaining the high level of the Hempstead schools.

Our heartiest congratulations to the Board of Education for its generous service and devotion to education.

DR. W. AMOS KINKAID
Superintendent of Schools

THE life of a superintendent of schools may be a stimulating one but it is certainly not an easy one. On duty almost twenty-four hours a day, he is called upon to speak before or meet with various business or professional groups. He must be patient, understanding, and diplomatic at all times.

Our own Dr. Kincaid wears the heavy burden of his job so well that one might get the impression that it is an easy one. His warm manner and his ready wit are always in evidence no matter what pressing problem may be weighing upon him at the moment. Hard-working though he is, Dr. Kincaid manages, through some magic, to find time for relaxation.

On the active sport side, Dr. Kincaid can be found playing a fast game of badminton or whacking a ball on a tough golf course. For part of the summer at least he takes to his retreat in the country for a well-earned rest.

WILLIAM D. BEDDOW

Principal

UNLIKE some principals who sternly direct the functioning of a school, our principal, Mr. Beddow, thoroughly enjoys working closely with high school students. He is always on the alert to make changes and improvements which will make Hempstead an even better school. Because it will benefit teachers and students a great deal, our principal is looking forward to the decrease in enrollment. This will mean less crowded halls, smaller classes, and probably extended periods. Another result of this decrease is that students will be able to have close contact with teachers and guidance personnel. Also, Mr. Beddow would like to increase our many extra-curricular activities. Still another change which he hopes will take place in the near future, is a schedule whereby students will come to and leave school at the same time.

Mr. Beddow's many activities take up much of his time; however, he states, "I'm busy but I enjoy every bit of it." In spite of his heavy schedule, our principal still finds time to devote to his hobbies which are reading and trout fishing. He has traveled throughout the United States, Canada, France, and Spain. One of his favorite places is a spot in the Catskills because of, as you might guess, the trout fishing. Hempstead High is very fortunate and proud to have Mr. Beddow as its principal.

ALFRED P. WINDT
Assistant to the Principal

FRANK PILL, JR.
Director of Guidance

E. CARLETON MOORE
Curriculum Coordinator

ASSISTING our principal are three people who are an important part of Hempstead High's administration. First on the list is Mr. Windt, the Assistant to the Principal. Although he is in charge of discipline and attendance, Mr. Windt also supervises all extracurricular activities, athletic finances, and maintains the records pertaining to the point system. Teaching math and general science was Mr. Windt's job when he first came to Hempstead. His interest in math continued, and he became co-author of the book Everyday Algebra. Busy as he is, Mr. Windt finds time to enjoy his hobbies which include various sports. He is a loyal Yankee fan.

Most academic students are familiar with Mr. Pill, the guidance director, whose official title is Director of Pupil Personnel Services of the Public Schools of Hempstead. However, his main job is primarily concerned with pre-college students. Mr. Pill feels that the important function of pre-college guidance is to send the student to a college which will suit his individual needs. Besides helping the seniors to decide what college to attend after leaving Hempstead, Mr. Pill and his assistants also advise all other students except sophomores and non-academic juniors and seniors. Included in his staff are secretarial assistants.

As curriculum coordinator, Mr. Moore is concerned with the courses of study in the high school and the elementary schools of Hempstead. Through his department the work of the grade schools is integrated with that of the high school. In doing so, the department decides what subjects the grade schools must offer in order to prepare the students for high school work. Mr. Moore is also the director of Audio-Visual Education which is an important supplement to our subjects.

We of the Colonial Staff, extend our sincere thanks to the administrators whose work is one of the most important aspects in the functioning of our school.

OUR future is determined during our high school years. Although we may recognize our interests, we need guidance in deciding our course of study. The counselors can aid us in our choice of curriculum, and of proper courses for further studies, or, for those who wish it, an immediate position in a desired vocation.

The world's knowledge is found in its books. For those students who wish to partake of this knowledge, H. H. S. has two well-stocked libraries. For assistance in his selection, a student may turn to one of the librarians, to whom we are grateful for the variety of material, the fine order of the libraries, and their kind helpfulness in our quest of knowledge.

English

THE English language as defined by Webster is, "a strong, expressive, composite language, spoken by the people of English descent and by numerous others throughout the world." The English language is commonly misused in composition, pronunciation and in everyday conversation. In order to correct these errors and increase the general knowledge in the field of English, courses include composition, literature, grammar and vocabulary.

When applying for a job or position a person's qualifications are often judged by his manner of speaking, his command of the English language, as well as his abilities and personality.

Included in the curriculum for seniors who qualify, there are special advanced English classes. Courses in creative writing are also offered. Our English Department, headed by Miss Barth, provides a well-rounded study of literature, grammar and other phases of English.

Citizenship Education

ONE important aim of Citizenship Education is to help prepare the students to become a well-informed citizen of his community. It is included in every student's schedule, no matter what course he is taking. Through history courses, he is made to understand more fully the wealth of the heritage and culture that has been handed down to him. By participating in debates, discussions, and panels, each person has the opportunity to express his own opinions and ideas. Films, slides, and speakers supplement the usual class work. Our two foreign exchange students who spoke in many citizenship classes brought new points of view to these classes.

Besides the required subjects of Social Studies I, World and American history, courses in modern civilization and economics are also offered. For seniors who qualify, there are special advanced American history classes. Whatever field a student enters after high school, he will have been prepared with a broader understanding of life because of Citizenship Education. The department chairman is Mrs. Vincent.

Languages

PERHAPS in the near future, some of Hempstead's language students will travel to a foreign country either for pleasure or business reasons. If they do go to France, Spain, or any other country, they will assuredly thank their language teachers at Hempstead for the excellent instruction they received in either French, Spanish or German.

One of the most important points to be emphasized about languages is that studying them is not a mere memorization of vocabulary and verbs. The country's history, culture, literature and current events are studied, and also several native songs are learned. In order to increase their knowledge of a country and its language, many students join a language club.

Our teachers' enthusiasm has stimulated student interest in foreign countries, and as a result, some of them have been fortunate enough to travel abroad with their families or with some students' travel agency such as The Experiment in International Living. How much more enjoyable are these trips because of the knowledge of a foreign language!

Mathematics

Mr. Francis supervises class study.

WE live in a world of the future. You have no doubt seen a magazine with pictures of space travel. Just imagine the mathematics involved in building a space ship or station, in making accurate instruments and even in launching the ship. We are the generation that is to complete these plans and therefore we must have a knowledge of mathematics.

With our constantly changing world, a knowledge of mathematics is increasingly important. From the invention of the wheel to the splitting of the atom, mathematics has become so very important to our civilization.

Six different math courses are offered in our school curriculum. A student of Hempstead High can receive an education in elementary algebra, the study of quantity in terms of formulas or equations, and plane geometry, the study of flat surfaces, in his freshman and sophomore years respectively. In his junior and senior years, four half-year courses are available to him. They are intermediate algebra, trigonometry, the study of the right triangle, solid geometry, the study of solid figures, and advanced algebra.

Mathematics teaches us how to comprehend, how to reason and how to come to a scientific or practical conclusion.

The students who receive this mathematical knowledge possess a basis for more complex studies and also establish a foundation for such professions as atomic research and engineering to name just two of many.

Science

EACH generation finds that science plays an increasingly important role in its life. The plans for the use of atoms for war and peace, which will inevitably have an effect on our lives, are dependent upon the science students of today. Science is not only a basis for a career but a means of understanding the world in which we live. The fascination of science will never end, for there will always be some questions, left unanswered.

For those who plan to enter the field of science, courses are offered which furnish the foundations for more advanced work. The science department of Hempstead High School, under the direction of Mr. Franklin Faust, offers several elective courses of study. General science presents a glimpse into elementary facts of the various sciences. A student may wish to further his scientific knowledge, in which case he may avail himself of courses in biology, physics and chemistry. There is also a course of physiography, or earth science, available.

Business Education

FOR those students who contemplate entering the field of business after graduation the Business Education Department offers a well-rounded curriculum. The subjects include introduction to business, business arithmetic, typing, shorthand, bookkeeping and business law.

The commercial students receive expert training from the Business Education staff capably headed by Mr. Davidson.

While the Business Education Department deals largely with the commercial and business students, some courses are available to academic students as well. Personal typing, bookkeeping, and business law, which are considered fine preparation for college, are some of the subjects offered to the academic students. The department has an eye toward the future in planning for a special class of shorthand for these students.

The Business Education Department played a part in the "Listen, This Is America" concert. The business classes wrote biographies on their heritage, displayed souvenirs of their ancestors, prepared bulletin boards and did library research on the theme.

Homemaking

THE homemaking course combines theory and practice with tangible results. Students in the homemaking classes learn the fine art of cooking under the able supervision of Miss Taft. Among the many uses they make of their skill is that of making cookies for the school teas.

Mrs. Bowen, in her sewing classes, enables the girls to make chic but economical wardrobes.

Miss Bennett and girls watch a practical demonstration.

This year's annual fashion show was ample proof of the progress the girls have made.

Miss Bennett prepares our future housewives by combining cooking, sewing and grooming in her classes.

The future husbands of Hempstead's girls may thank Miss Taft and her department for their capable preparation of tomorrow's homemakers.

Art

THE Art Department offers a variety of creative and interesting subjects to those interested in the field of art. The students have ample opportunity to work with various media such as; water color, tempera paints, charcoal, pen and ink, and crayons.

As the year progresses the students acquire even greater interest in art, for they have had a chance to express their own creative ideas and thoughts.

The Art Department also assists in the planning of the Senior Ball and Junior Prom. Under the able supervision of Mrs. Oman, Mr. Chambers, and Mr. Pilkington, the students accomplish a great deal in the rich field of art.

Music

THIS year, as in the past, H. H. S.'s Music Department presented its annual festival which integrates the work of other departments of our school. Through the efforts of Miss Boyle and her staff, the orchestra, band and choir have once again performed outstandingly.

Music has come to play an increasingly important role in the lives of many of our Hempstead students. Now, and in the coming years, music will continue to enrich their cultural lives. Because of the interest in its programs, the orchestra is again presenting excerpts from concerts during the homeroom period. Through Miss Boyle's explanation of each selection, the students are able to gain a great deal from these programs.

Dramatics

THERE are two main aspects to the Dramatics Department; public speaking and drama. One of the main objectives of the department is to bring before the student body some of the best works in the field of drama.

At the beginning of the year, several plays are read and considered for production. Having selected the play, Miss Randall, the head of the department, issues a call for tryouts. Once the play is cast, there follows a period of strenuous work for the cast, the production crew and the director.

In the public speaking classes the students develop poise, self-expression, and good speech habits. After training in the speech classes and appearances in plays, the pupils under Miss Randall's supervision should have little fear in facing an audience.

Industrial Arts

THE artisans of tomorrow are taught to develop their talents in Hempstead High's Industrial Arts Department, which is located at Prospect Street School.

Over twenty-five courses designed to develop skill and technique in operating industrial machines are offered the students in industrial arts.

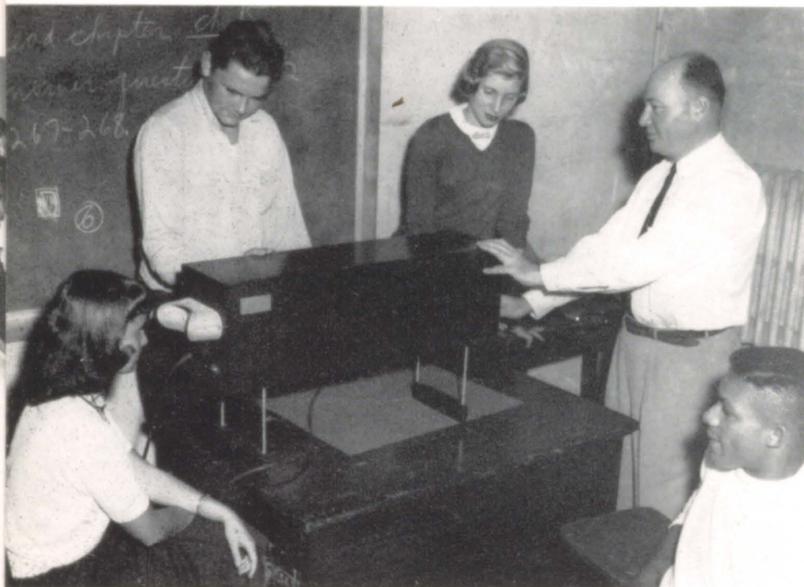

Six shops and a drafting room are maintained with the finest equipment possible. To guide the pupils is a staff of five members, skillfully trained to start the pupils of industrial arts on fine careers.

Driver Education

"SAFETY and courtesy to other drivers and pedestrians," stresses Mr. White, "is the motto of the juniors and seniors taking Driver Education.

Three times a week the students meet in the classroom where discussion, reports, and movies are presented. Once a week they are on the road. Also on the program are visits to traffic courts, and garages. They conduct traffic surveys and take tests for physical abilities and reactions.

Mr. Jelicks instructs the boys in the use of power tools.

Miss Best administers first aid in the Health Office.

Health and Physical Fitness

THE Health and Physical Education Departments are an essential element in maintaining the physical fitness of the student.

The Health Department gives every student a physical examination at the beginning of the year. It also gives assistance whenever anyone is ill. Examinations are given again when one goes out for a sport or wants working papers.

This year with the attendance reduced in gym classes, participants in physical education were able to engage in more individual activities.

With the boys, the year is started off by playing touch football followed by basketball. Next comes wrestling and tumbling. In the spring, track and softball are the predominant sports.

In the girls' gym some of the important activities are basketball and softball. But the most exciting and important of all activities is the preparation for Greek Games. The girls train long and thoroughly until each event is perfected.

With the excellent facilities that the Health and Physical Education Departments offer the student is given every chance not only to build muscles, but also to mold fine characters.

A CORPS of efficient and helpful clerks and secretaries is found in the various administrative and counseling offices of the school. Thoroughly acquainted with office and secretarial matters, they have at their finger tips all necessary information. Consequently, it is an easy matter to obtain any information concerning the school or a particular student. Summer work for them goes on at the same pace. End of the year clerical work increases and class lists for the fall term are prepared by them. A list of all the jobs of these clerks and secretaries would be a long one. Typing, and dictation of course, would head the list. But that is only a part of the many things they do.

The work has its amusing aspects as well. The questions asked by the students, and not all of

YOU are the graduating class of '56. This is your "Colonial"; it is a remembrance of your years at Hempstead High. We hope that they were fruitful years filled with knowledge and overflowing with fun.

The activities and responsibilities of your president, Bob Marcinkowski, were as numerous as the letters of his name, and that's plenty. He has been an honor student through all his four years. Bob is a member of the track team and has run on the cross country team. He is also a "real hot" accordionist.

Barbara Boyce, better known as "Guz," was a very hard-working vice-president. She was junior secretary for three years and was an ambitious Booster Club member. It was her efforts as head of the Senior Ball that made it such a success.

Carol Gustavson, your secretary, was treasurer for her freshman class. A member of the FTA for three years and vice-president this past year, she hopes to become a teacher. She played the glockenspiel in our band for four years and loved every minute of it.

Maybe it was the money involved and maybe it's his charm that makes Larry Winston, your class treasurer, so attractive to girls. Besides girls, Larry loves football and softball and has played on both varsity teams. As for his accomplishments, he did a great job as the head of ticket sales for the Senior Ball and Boys' Broken Ball. Next year he'll be an inhabitant of the north while he attends St. Lawrence University.

We take time now to say "thank you" for the very able class advice offered by Mr. Lints, Miss Rhodes and Mr. Lawson. And add to that, some thanks to Mr. Pill and Mr. Turnbull who have helped so many of you find the proper college or job.

For some of you, your studies are finished—to you, we wish all the success in your future work. For those who are planning to enter college, we hope you take advantage of all the education available to you and that at the end of your training you can turn that knowledge into a rich life.

The planning committee assembled under the snow.

"Victor's Orchestra" plays on.

Senior Ball

THE splendor of a snowbound countryside, the work of the talented senior committee, formed the background for the Senior Ball which was named "Winter Wonderland." Excited couples danced among the breath-taking snow world to the music of Victor's band on that magic night of January 27.

At one end of this glittering array stood the ice-castle linked by silver chains to a silver draw-bridge which served as an ideal bandstand. Snowflakes dancing about the ceiling resembled huge stars against a cold sky. Refreshments were served from a sparkling cave seemingly carved from snow. Here and there snowdrifts with contrasting blue-green shadows cast a frosty note to the atmosphere.

Barbara Boyce, general chairman of the Senior Ball, supervised the planning and decorating of the boys' gym with the guidance and advice of Mr. Chambers. The art co-chairmen, Lois Fennelly, and Gail Barton, along with their committees were mainly responsible for the exquisite decorations. Jay Sklar, as treasurer, handled the financial affairs.

As the music no longer was heard in the crowded room the couples reluctantly drifted out into the night with happy memories of the annual Senior Ball.

"Is that the Mombo?", asked Sandy Wood.

Dancing in the snow was fun.

LOOKING back on some of the activities of the junior year, we find that it was a success. Our biggest event of the year, the Junior Prom, which took early planning and hard work on the part of all, was the success it always is. The junior class assembly led by our officers provided us with some excellent entertainment. The juniors also led in the class competition.

Junior reps were elected in English classes. They proposed a slate of officers that we in turn voted upon. Capably heading our class as president was John Edwards who was supported by vice-president, Muriel Roeth; treasurer, James Hawks; and secretary, Brenda Baskin. The class

THE class of '58 is now in its sophomore year. Seasoned, it is out to show the school its capabilities.

One of the meanings of the Greek work sophomore is "foolish." But the sophomores of this year weren't foolish in electing Milton Zahn as president, Lynn Puerschner as vice-president, Eugene Daly as treasurer, and Eleanor Drake as secretary.

Milton, a sports enthusiast, plans to join the Marines. A member of the orchestra, Lynn is interested in social work. Eugene wants to study mechanics, and Eleanor intends to be a secretary.

From the dues collected by representatives, four, five dollar gift certificates were presented to John Edwards,

ON the first day of school here at Hempstead, one found a group of slightly confused and bewildered people known as freshmen. However, as confused as they were, the freshmen soon straightened out their difficulties and became accustomed to the routine.

In the fall, they were faced with the job of electing class officers. Robert Mahoney was elected president. Robert is interested in sports, and he hopes to attend college. Susan Kornfield was chosen as vice-president. A member of the orchestra and glee club, Susan also holds the vice-presidency of the honor club. Serving as class secretary was Martha Underriner, who belongs to the glee club and art club. Her ambition is to be a secretary. Taking charge of

Senior Executive Council

REPRESENTING the seniors, attempting to solve their problems and planning their schedule of activities, constituted the main work of the Senior Executive Council. Composed of representatives chosen in September in the American history classes, the Council worked for the seniors and acted only upon decisions approved by them. Every senior had the right to express his opinion before any action could be executed.

At the end of the junior year, elections were held to pick senior class officers upon whom fell a great responsibility. Those chosen were worthy of this great honor. These officers assumed their respective positions on the Council. Placed in the spot light this year were, Bob Marcinkowski as president; Barbara Boyce as vice-president; Carol Gustavson as secretary; and Larry Winston as treasurer. Guiding the Council to a successful conclusion of its work was the senior class advisor, Mr. Lints who was ably assisted by Miss Rhodes.

The social highlight of the year was the Senior Ball. "Winter Wonderland" was its theme. All work and responsibilities connected with this event were placed solely in the capable hands of the Council and successfully executed by it. It was truly one of the highlights of the senior year.

Eagerly anticipated and packed full of fun are three outstanding days in the senior year. Skillfully carried out under the supervision of the members of the Council, they are Senior-Frosh Day, Dress-Up Day, and Old Clothes Day.

The senior class is not complete without its color, flower and motto. The suggestions were made by the seniors. The Council selected the nine topics for the final ballot. The decisive vote was cast by the seniors. "What you are to be you are now becoming" was the motto selected. The flower is the American Beauty rose; the colors are royal blue and silver.

The Council proved its capability and talent for leadership by assuming and carrying out, to its utmost ability, the great responsibility of guiding its fellow classmates through their last year in Hempstead High School.

In the spring of last year, the entire school became aware of many exciting activities revolving around a very important election. The election was that of the officers of the Student Council. Posters and pictures representing the candidates were seen throughout the halls. Everyone was eligible to vote. The election was preceded by a week of campaigning and concluded with a pep rally and dance. Elected to office were Sandy Wood, president; Elaine Maguire, vice-president; Harriet Gilbert, corresponding secretary; Carole Kozlowski, recording secretary; and Steve Weich, treasurer. This election is one of the most important and exciting events in our school. Why is this so?

The Student Council is the governing body of Hempstead High School. It is behind the plans, activities and government of our school. Its purposes are to promote school spirit, arouse interest in school activities, and seek a solution to problems which may arise. Acting as advisors to the Council are Mr. Beckett and Miss Newlon.

Membership on the Council is divided into three main sections. Reporting the affairs of the Council directly to the students and representing them on the Council are the senators. A senator and his alternate are selected in each home-room. Directing all matters concerning the clubs and activities of our school is the Student Assembly. The able chairman this year was Carol Ann Colgan. One of the most popular and active parts of the Student Council is the Booster Club whose main job is to promote school spirit and to create interest in school activities to the greatest extent possible. Prior to an event, eye-catching posters announcing the event were seen throughout the school. This year's president was Jay Sklar.

The imaginative and hard-working council came up with two innovations in Hempstead High School this year. The first was the "class Competition." Based on a percentage basis, this competition between classes aimed to stimulate the sale of Colonials, G. O. tickets and various other activities. The second innovation was our Tiger mascot, the Hempstead Hub-Cat.

Acting as hosts to two foreign students is an annual function of the Student Council. This year our visitors were Romano Kunz from Switzerland and Yolanda Parra from Guatemala.

Each year a new G. O. Budget is adopted according to the school's needs. Receiving financial backing from the Student Council are such activities as the Colonial, Patriot, all sports, Christmas decorations, and the entertainment of foreign students.

The members of Hempstead High School will always be indebted to the Student Council. Many of the wonderful activities and events of the year could not have taken place without its capable leadership.

Colonial

WELL the '56 COLONIAL is out! Like it? We hope so, for this is the finished product of nearly a year of hard work by the three staffs. It was a long, hard grind for us but we made it—somehow! As in the past, each staff had a titanic task in carrying out its work, but it was done, and done well. The work of the three staffs was carried out in various parts of the building.

Room 23 can be called the editorial staff's nerve center. In this room the editors met daily to discuss problems with Bill Frank, the editor-in-chief. Bill's job was to supervise the general operation of the editorial staff. On the shoulders of the editors: Dorothy Klimczuk, Bill Hurd, Grace Felicetti, Gary Cohan, and Lou Reimer, fell the responsibility of wresting the "masterpieces of literary genius" from the writers, who, at times, argued and protested, but got their articles in anyway.

The task of "grubbing up" the cash for this enterprise was the work of the business staff. The editors on the business staff Evelyn Juergensen, Priscilla Di Pong, and Niel Davidson, through their vigorous work at sales, bill collecting, and the soliciting of advertisements for the COLONIAL, have made this publication financially possible.

We can't forget the art staff, for its hard work on the drawings and sketches is evident on every page of this book. It would be difficult to imagine the COLONIAL without any art work. Heading the staff of eight was Sally Dunmore.

The backbone of the Colonial this year, as in the past, was formed by the four advisors: Mr. Helbach, who toiled with the business staff; Mr. Pilkington, who guided the art staff; Mr. Menza, who supervised copy; and Mr. Ayres, whose job it was to bring about the complete and final product. We on the Colonial would like to give thanks to these four gentlemen for

After being checked, rechecked and checked again for errors, the paper is sent to the printer's for publication and, "pronto" on Monday morning the paper arrives, fresh, clean, and still smelling of printer's ink.

You say: So what? So they're delivered to the school. We haven't received them yet. What happens after they're delivered? Ah! Wait a minute, I was coming to that. After they arrive at school they're whisked off by the efficient business staff headed by Mr. Navarra, advisor, and the two editors, Robert Navarra and Christopher Sturge. Then a corps of members deliver them to each homeroom.

That's the Patriot story. There's nothing more to say, except that the Patriot has given many years of fine service to our school; it is constantly improving and we're sure it will continue to do so. We hope it will continue to advance the democratic principles on which our school is based and help to prove that the students do take an active and major part in the running of our school.

Senior Service Squad

THROUGH the efforts of one of the leading senior girls, the Senior Service Squad was organized in 1924. This girl believed that the girls, as well as the boys, could be of service to the school and from this belief came the first service squad in the school. Being the oldest girls squad in the school it is very appropriately named the Senior Service Squad. The name does not imply that the girl must be a senior.

The first group consisted of fifteen girls selected by the registrar to assist in her office. Now the seventeen girls of the Senior Service Squad perform their duties in Office 1A under the supervision of Mrs. Hueston. Their tasks consist of alphabetizing, filing, going on errands, acting as hostesses and fulfilling various other jobs. The number of girls has varied from time to time; some years as many as thirty have been on the squad, some years as few as fifteen. Through the years, however, the duties of this squad have remained more or less the same.

Christine Eriksen is the present chief and her assistant is Judith Martin. The members of the Senior Service Squad are still selected by the registrar and serve one period a day in her office.

Junior Secretaries

"GOOD morning, Mrs. Goldy's office, may I take a message?" Undoubtedly, all the Junior Secretaries have had at one time or another, occasion to utter this greeting. One of Hempstead High's favorite organizations, the Junior Secretary Squad comprises a group of about sixty-five girls carefully chosen on the basis of recommendation by teachers, willingness to work, personality and an interview by the dean of girls. One period a day plus two weeks late duty a year must be spent by each girl in helping office III run smoothly.

Basic duties include distributing slips from all offices to pupils and teachers, answering the phone, greeting people, filing, and typing the excused and absentee lists.

Benefiting greatly by the experience and practice which working in an office affords, the Junior Secretaries acquire proficiency in office procedures.

Ably assisting Mrs. Goldy in office III is the entire squad with Wilma MacCormack serving as Chief of the Junior Secretaries.

Audio-Visual Squad

"THE men behind the cameras" is the best way to describe the Audio-Visual squad for, it's in that role that we most often see them. Not only does the Audio-Visual squad run the motion picture projectors but also an assortment of various slide and strip film projectors, three types of tape recorders and the P.A. system. The squad also maintains a collection of films, slides, and film strips that interest both student and teacher alike. Another important phase of the work of this squad is to make sure that the Audio-Visual equipment gets to the right places at the right time.

Mr. Moore and Mr. Lind, his assistant, see that the official business is taken care of, while Ronald Schilpp, squad chief, and Tom Samson, assistant squad chief, see that the squad and office 18A is kept humming.

The squad was formed in 1934 for the purpose of providing the schools of Hempstead with Audio-Visual equipment. In 1939 Hempstead High became the center of a cooperative film library for Nassau. In 1952 the library was dissolved and the modern Hempstead High Audio-Visual squad emerged. Today the squad stands ready to provide any organization in the community with films or projectors and projectionists any time or anywhere.

Credit for the squad's success goes to Mr. Moore, for, it's been his "baby" from the start.

ALMOST everyone in Hempstead High School has had the occasion to enter Office Four. Many of the individual problems of members of the school are discussed and solved here. Each period of the day, two or three girls can be found in the office capably doing their share of the work to help lessen the great task of the guidance counselors. These girls comprise the Counselors' Service Squad. Skillfully advising the group is Miss MacDougall. Two weeks of the year the girls are required to serve late duty as well as to work during homeroom period for one week.

The selection of the squad members is based mainly upon their sophomore interview with Miss MacDougall. Their marks, scholastic ability, and personality are taken into consideration before the final decision of the composition of the Squad is made.

A great deal of the girls' time in the office is devoted to clerical work. At times the girls are required to act as receptionists or messengers. They set up the material for personal interviews which are an important part of the work of the guidance office. The girls also grow familiar with the schedules and spend many hours at their varied tasks.

Holding this position has been an asset to the girls by further developing their personality and adding to their experience working in an office. The girls have proved themselves to be an indispensable part of the office.

WORKING quietly behind the scenes, assisting the heads of each department, are the secretaries to the faculty. As the best qualified girls from the Commercial Department, they are chosen for their demonstrated skill in clerical work, typing, and stenciling.

These secretaries devote four hours a week to the head of the department, and do such work as typing business letters, cutting stencils for exams, and mimeographing these exams.

Mrs. Schryver chooses these able girls and future secretaries of our school. She keeps in contact with them and gives them guidance in any difficult problem that may arise. A secretary to the faculty is both a time saver and an efficient helper to our faculty. More and more is done each year by the girls for the convenience of our teachers.

Working on the same schedule all year and adapting themselves to the teacher's schedule, they work in such offices as the mimeograph workroom, athletic office near the boys' gym, the business office, the auditor's office and Room 18A.

All these girls look forward to the day when they can use their experience and training in an office job and hence are happy to try their skills on our faculty chairmen who in turn appreciate their help.

Library Staff

ANY student wishing literary information or desiring to keep informed of the latest magazine articles has only to step into the library to find all this material at his fingertips. Our two libraries are set up to accommodate pupils who have reference work in their various courses or who wish to browse around in search of a good book for that evening.

Formerly there was one library but as the number of students increased and additional space was needed the senior library for upper classmen was established. This is, in fact, a branch of the main or freshman library. The latter has continued under the guidance of M^{iss} Rhodes while Mrs. Cullen has been in charge of the senior library. To help the librarians in their work, a student staff of boys and girls recommended by their teachers for exceptional ability or interest in library work is on hand. These workers are kept busy with desk work, library slips, overdue notices, and other tasks involved in the smooth running of a library. Working in the library and becoming acquainted with library science, these students gain excellent experience.

For the past three years the Library Staff met as a regular homeroom in the Main Library under the guidance of a homeroom teacher.

Rifle Club

THE main purpose of the Rifle Club this year was to teach the safe handling of firearms. Through this club, students are trained not only in the use of firearms but in the prevention of accidents.

This year the club consisted of about one hundred and twenty boys and about fifteen girls who attended these meetings for fun and skill. Membership is open to all students, regardless of their year in school. The meetings are held every day as a third period class and also every afternoon after school.

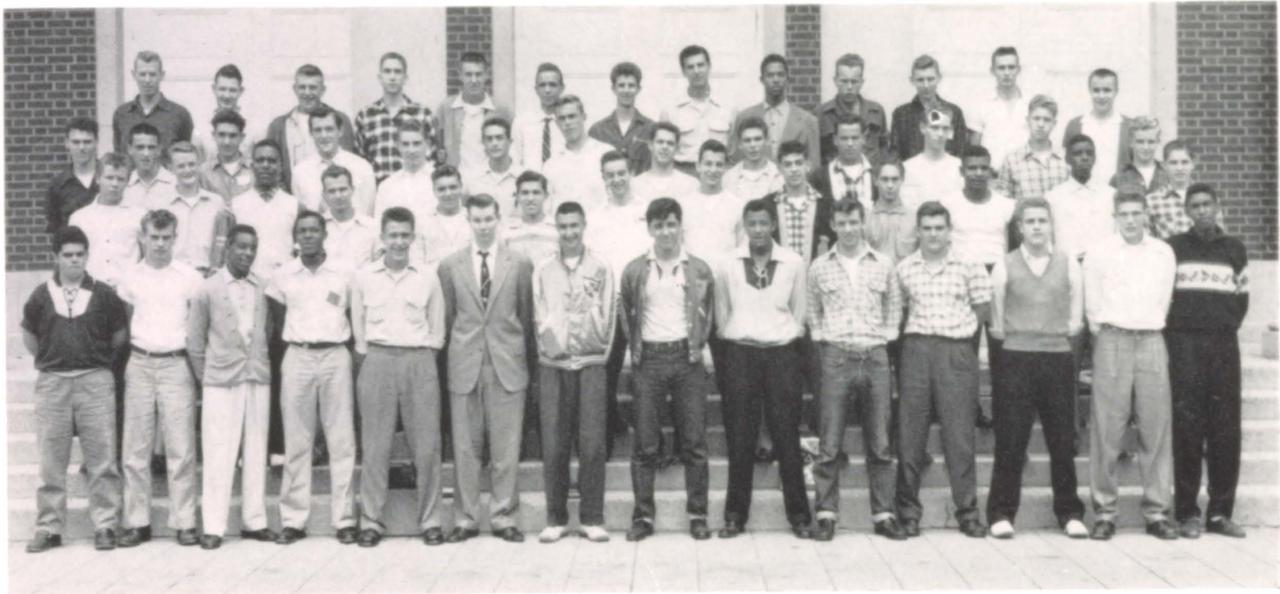

At these meetings, which are supervised by Mr. Voorhies, the faculty advisor, the students try constantly to better their shooting accuracy. Besides this, the members get personal satisfaction out of the club plus the opportunity to enter the National Rifle Association to compete for national awards. From this club, will emerge many of our top members of the rifle team for next year.

Helping Mr. Voorhies to instruct the new members are the more advanced students. Under the leadership of their president, Henry Szabronski, the club members are getting good training in making their mark in the world.

THERE comes a time in every student's life when he tries to sneak through the halls without a pass. It is then that he begins to realize the efficiency of Hempstead High's hall cops, for, he will undoubtedly be confronted by a pass-seeking hall cop.

Hall Patrol

The hall cops are on the job maintaining order in the halls from first to ninth period. These students who are always ready to harass you about your pass are volunteers who give up a study hall to serve the school.

The hall cops are organized something like this; in the post of "chief" is Mr. Fish, the advisor, who is assisted by two teachers each period. It is their job to see that order is maintained during each period. Under the teachers there is a lieutenant per period whose duty is to keep the hall cops' attendance and to supervise generally. Finally, under the lieutenant there is the ever-present hall cop whom most of us meet daily.

For approximately the past thirty years the Hall Cop Squad has been doing its duty. Recently the squad merged with the Campus Patrol and its area now not only covers the hallowed halls of Hempstead High but the surrounding campus as well.

Secretarial Hostesses

ABILITY, cooperativeness, and affiliation with the music department, these are the desired qualities and requirements for all secretarial hostesses. Numbering eight this year, these girls, who are upperclassmen, are chosen by Miss

Boyle and Miss McQueen. Their purpose is to perform chores of all kinds in the Band Box. Among these are: answering the phone, delivering messages to music teachers, and running errands to all parts of the building. However, most important of their chores is greeting and escorting guests of the Band Box. An explanation of the working and set-up of our music department is given each guest.

Four years ago, when the new Band Box was erected, it was noticed that there was a need for girls to do miscellaneous jobs and thus the secretarial hostesses came into being. Although this service club is young, it has been running as efficiently as the longer established organizations.

Health Service Squad

INTO the Health Office come people with anything from stomach aches to broken bones and this is where the Health Service Squad is of greatest service and importance. These girls, who are upper classmen, perform the minor nursing duties and prepare the callers for the experienced eye of Miss Best, the school nurse.

The duties of the Health Service Squad are many and the scope of these duties is varied. Some include running errands, taking temperatures, writing gym excuses, generally assisting in first-aid, filing health records, and performing clerical work. One of the big jobs of the year is helping with the hearing test given to every student in the school.

Established in 1935, the squad this year consists of ten girls working one period a day under the supervision of Miss Best. A majority of these girls intend to pursue a nursing career and hence feel their membership in the Health Service Squad a great asset.

Commercial Club

THERE was considerable activity and merriment when the members of the Commercial Club met in room 24 on the third Tuesday of each month. The thirty-eight potential secretaries elected officers at the first meeting. The following month there was a get-acquainted party, planned by a social committee. Under the leadership of the president, Diane North, vice-president, Jeanette Duggan, and secretary-treasurer, Constance Dembrosky, the girls made colorful Christmas place-mats for the children's ward of a local hospital.

In January, the Commercial Club and the Key Klickers joined forces to make their annual trip to New York City; a truly big event. Nearly fifty members made the trip by bus and ate lunch in the city. The highlight of the day was seeing the musical comedy hit, "Damn Yankees."

This club, organized about twenty years ago and at the present time supervised by Miss Degenhardt and Miss Bringhurst, is a social as well as an educational club for sophomore girls.

Future Teachers of America

INTEREST in the teaching profession runs high among students in Hempstead High School. As a result, Hempstead can be proud of having one of the largest Future Teachers Clubs on Long Island. There is an active membership of almost 125 students.

Due to the large and unwieldy size of the club and also to the difference in schedule of under-classmen and upper-classmen, the club divided into three smaller groups. These are the Peter Cooper F. T. A. for juniors and seniors, the Esther P. Greenlund F. T. A., for sophomores, and the Horace Mann F. T. A. for freshmen. They have eighty, thirty, and fourteen members respectfully.

Although they meet separately, the three clubs work together on many of the projects carried on by the F. T. A. as a whole. The Future Teachers clubs have given their services to the school in various ways this year. The club as a whole ushered for the large P. T. A. meeting in the fall and acted as guides for the Nassau English Council Tea, held in Hempstead High School in January. The juniors and seniors ushered for the show "Carmen Jones." The Peter Cooper F. T. A. members in addition were hostesses at a Geneseo State Teachers College "Open House" held in October.

One of the most important activities of the F. T. A. this year was the trip taken by the junior and senior members to Ludlum School in Hempstead. There, the Future Teachers witnessed, first hand, classroom teaching on an elementary level, and the operation of an elementary school. It was a rewarding experience for all, as was confirmed by the interesting discussion which took place at the next meeting of the Peter Cooper F. T. A. Here the members discussed what they had seen and what had impressed them most about the various elementary grades.

This year, Priscilla Tedesco headed the Peter Cooper chapter, and assisting her were Carol Gustavsen, vice-president, Barry Deixler, treasurer, Barbara Kilian, recording secretary, and Susan Schreiber, corresponding secretary. The Esther P. Greenlund division was headed by Judith Brown, Marilyn Gorunfest was vice-president, Lois Piltch was treasurer and Adele Wilson, secretary. The Horace Mann club had for its president, Jean Silliman. She was assisted by Barbara Macguire, vice-president, Ray Messer, secretary, and Barbara Donofrio, treasurer.

Tupiar Club

If there are any math enthusiasts in Hempstead High School, they are sure to be found in the Tupiar Club. This club is meant for those students who excel in math and are interested in learning more about the subject, rather than for those who are falling behind in math.

During the past year, the club often met twice a week under the direction of Mr. Hayes. At these frequent meetings, those members who were deeply interested in the further study of mathematics, participated in a variety of interesting projects, while those who may have joined only out of curiosity stopped attending meetings. This permitted the remaining members to progress more rapidly. Examples of their activities were the making of math models, and instruction in the fundamentals of surveying; projects which the members found interesting. Mr. Hayes also introduced to the club some college mathematics.

Student leadership this year was in the hands of three capable boys. Walter Johnson held the position of president with John Graves assisting him as vice-president. Filling the dual position of secretary and treasurer, was Jack Consenz.

Stamp Club

THE philatelists of Hempstead High this year, met under the guidance of Mr. Holtz, faculty advisor, and the following officers: George Batik, president; Allan Rubin, vice-president; Mario Salerno, secretary; and Charlotte Easter, treasurer. The meetings were held on the second Tuesday of each month, and began after the ninth period so that students from all the classes could attend. At the meetings the members traded stamps, exhibited and added to their stamp albums.

Mr. Holtz received a gift package of rare stamps and offered it as a door prize to a club member. Occasionally several members attended stamp exhibitions that were of special interest to them.

Sketch Club

IF you have a love of art and beauty and a desire to create some masterpieces of your own, this is the club for you.

This year, under the direction of Mrs. Oman, the members decided to concentrate on oil painting. In order to gain a better appreciation of the finer works of art the club visited museums where the members found many inspiring paintings. During the warm Spring days you may have seen many Sketch Club members outdoors doing some landscape painting.

Like any other organization, the Sketch Club has its able leaders—Charles Hartley, president; Everitt Cochran, vice-president; Sandra Carpinelli, secretary; and Sally Dunmore, treasurer.

Pioneers

THE purpose of the Pioneers, Hempstead High's freshman honor club for girls, is to recognize and encourage scholarship. This year's twenty members are the freshman girls who received the highest grades at the end of the first marking period. The girl having the highest average at the end of this year will receive a prize next fall.

Under the direction of their program committee chairman, Jill Marks and vice-chairman, Christine Stevenson, the girls made cancer dressings for Meadowbrook Hospital and were shown slides from the Metropolitan Museum of Art at their regular meetings. A bus trip to New York City with the Pathfinders, the boys' freshman honor group, was also in their plans.

The Pioneers, now under the guidance of Mrs. Marshall, are celebrating their twenty-second anniversary this year. The officers were: Dean Birdsall, president, Susan Kornfield, vice-president, Gail Schwenk, recording secretary, Rae Messer, corresponding secretary, and Leslie Dickenson, treasurer.

Pathfinders

THE fifteen members of the Pathfinders are the top-ranking freshman boys. They were ranked on the basis of grades achieved at the end of the first marking period. Unlike the requirements for membership in the sophomore, junior, and senior honor clubs, membership in the freshman honor club is determined by grades earned the first marking period this year at Hempstead High, and not those earned last year. The boys must maintain this scholastic level throughout the year.

The first social function of the year was the Christmas party. The Pathfinders joined forces with the girls' freshman honor club, the Pioneers, to make this event a memorable one. There was dancing, refreshments, and an enjoyable time was had by all.

Serving as president, vice-president, treasurer, and secretary of this honor club were: Jeffrey Caro, James Coffas, Edward Fox, and Robert De Castillia respectively. Mr. Baker, the advisor, addressed the members and joined them in planning their various activities.

Blue & White Corner

MANY a time has the Hempstead High School student found himself in dire need of school supplies. The situation is not hopeless, however, for all the student has to do is walk a few yards to the Blue and White Corner by the Main staircase. Here he will find a complete line of stationery, pens, books and souvenirs.

The Blue and White corner is run by students of Hempstead High School's Business Department. Under the able direction of Mr. Davidson, the Blue and White Corner has flourished in its policy of selling items at or below original cost.

This year the Corner introduced a new line of supplies. Some of these items were pocket books, pennants, banners and school cups. If you want a bargain visit your school store.

Radio Club

BOYS seeking experience in radio sending and receiving can get help and enjoyment from their membership in the Radio Club. Supervised by Mr. Lind, this year's club consisted of about twelve boys. Their main interest was in obtaining a ham operator's licence or in helping other members get theirs in the event they already possessed one.

The highlights of this year were practicing code sending and receiving, discussing and fixing home transmitters, doing radio repair work, and trying to raise the level of amateur radio. All these activities helped to give a spark to the meetings. Also, as in the past years, Mr. Woodard, principal of Ludlum Street School, talked to the boys and helped them with their problems. One of the tasks for this year was restoring the school sending and receiving station.

In the President's seat was Ted Robinson, KN2LKQ. Acting as veep was Louis Sciscenti, KN2GXX, and secretary-treasurer, Clarence Negretti. Only one other boy besides these have a license, Ben Deutschman, KN2LKO.

Archie Bleyer conducting.

THIS year marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Hempstead High School Music Department. Under the able and devoted guidance of Miss Imogene Boyle and her staff, the orchestra has added three more expertly performed concerts to its list of distinguished appearances. Hours of hard work, the same hard work it took to become one of the finest school orchestras in the country, were required to maintain this high level of distinction. Saturday morning rehearsals, afternoon sectionals and one or two night rehearsals with guest conductors or our own music teachers played important roles in the orchestra's preparation for this year's concerts. Helping to share the lead were, concert mistress, Lois Pattison, and the heads of the various sections: percussion, reed, brass, and string.

In December, the orchestra combined with the choir to give a concert at a dinner, sponsored by the Lions, Kiwanis, and Rotary clubs, held at the Elks Club.

On March 17th and 18th, a concert, whose theme was a tribute to our American heritage, was given in the East Gymnasium at Hofstra College. The guest narrator was Norman Rose while Everett Lee, Eli Siegmeister and Don Gillis shared the podium as guest conductors. Our Mr. Phillips conducted his own "Cantata: Dead of the Wilderness" for orchestra and chorus.

Climaxing the year's appearance was a concert given at Albany, New York, on May 4th.

The orchestra was invited by Mr. Joseph G. Saeveit, Supervisor of Music Education, to perform at a special convocation and inauguration ceremony held by the Board of Regents for the new Commissioner of Education. Mr. Saeveit remarked that "a concert by the Hempstead High School symphony orchestra would be one of the finest attractions the Association could offer." Thus ended another successful year in the history of our accomplished symphony orchestra.

"LISTEN! This Is America," the annual March concert, was the big undertaking of the year for the A Cappella Choir. The program was a compilation of the songs sung and written by the many nationalities which settled in the United States. So varied were they that they ranged from French to Czechoslovakian to African. From Norman Dello Joio's awe-inspiring work, "Song of Affirmation," which brought to a finale the concert, came the realization that the people of America are always looking for the star of a never-ending dream. The entire program revealed the way the hundreds of immigrants came, settled, mixed with the others, and finally became part of our great American heritage. This year, as in previous years, Hempstead was privileged in having a guest conductor. Everett Lee, from the New York City Opera filled that post this year with

The opening chorus at the concert, "Listen! This is America."

Choir

Norman Rose, who is associated with various phases of the theatre, as guest narrator.

Hard work, again, was the formula for the successful year. On December fifteenth at the Elk's Club dinner, a preview of the March concert was held for the service clubs of Hempstead. The Choir was accompanied by the orchestra, and both received gracious compliments from guest conductor Archie Bleyer, of radio and television fame. In accordance with the annual tradition, the Choir donned robes and carolled through the halls bringing Christmas cheer to the faculty as well as to the student body. Spring plans included a concert which featured the music of Mozart.

In 1931, the Choir, established under the direction of Miss Esther McQueen, comprised twenty-five girls. Since then, it has grown to a membership of 135. Each Choir member is carefully chosen on the basis of recommendation, willingness and a vocal analysis by Miss McQueen.

Tenors and basses of the senior choir accompanied by James Paulin.

To Miss McQueen we must give credit for her untiring efforts in helping the Choir maintain the high ratings acquired in previous years. The tremendous success of every performance also hinges on practice. One period a day plus one extra period a week at sectionals and the Saturday rehearsals are spent in practice. The result of the Spring concert justified the hard work throughout the year.

Intense concentration in preparation for "Listen, This Is America."

Band

EARLY Saturday morning rehearsals, after-school practice during the football season, and summer rehearsals were responsible for the usual success of the band show.

Using the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Hempstead High School Music Department as a theme for this year's show, the band put on a show which was termed "the best yet."

The National Anthem at gametime.

Forming the letters H.H.S. the Hi-Steppers, Majorettes, and Twirlettes performed in a precision to "Say it with Music." Other formations were the letters M-U-S-I-C, a double line of twirlers doing a fabulous flag routine, and a 3-layer birthday cake featuring fire twirlers.

Everyone looked forward to the performances, especially to the annual exhibition at the Polo Grounds. This year, however, only three of the scheduled shows were performed; rainy weekends canceled the rest.

As far as many people are concerned, the band disbands after the last football game. This is a misconception. "They have not yet begun to fight!" From a roaring and loud marching band, it quickly turns into a melodic, symphonic band. Exhibiting a variety of musical expression in the work of our modern composers, the band played a very important role in "Listen! This is America!"; the theme of this year's Spring Concert at Hofstra College.

At this year's performance it played the works of William Schuman, director of the Juilliard School of Music; Frederick Prausnitz, dean of the Juilliard School of Music; Mr. Eli Siegmeister, professor of music at Hofstra College; and composer-conductor Don Gillis—all of whom were guest conductors at the concert.

The Hempstead High School band has been thrilling its audiences for the past twenty-five years. Under the capable guidance of Kazmier Albinski, the band has gained national recognition.

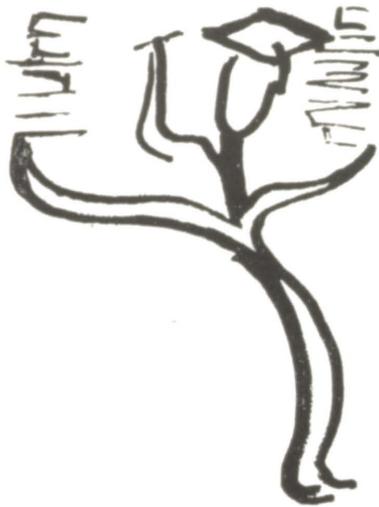

Rest for the weary band members.

Junto Club

THE Junto Club, the sophomore boys' honor club, is composed of the "cream" of the sophomore class. These students were picked at the beginning of the year for their high scholastic record of ninety-three or above in each of four major subjects. In order to remain in the club this level must be maintained throughout the year. Many of these boys are the class leaders of today and the future leaders of tomorrow.

The boys held their meetings once a month under the expert guidance of their new advisor, Mr. Leusch. In the early part of the year these meetings were composed mainly of business matters and the planning of future trips they would like to take. Later in the year they had several speakers among whom were Mr. Windt, who gave a very interesting talk on "Fun with Numbers," Mr. Pill, who spoke on colleges, and Mr. Ayres, who spoke on the Colonial.

Again the Junto and Pallas Clubs, the sophomore girls' honor club, held a meeting in order to plan their annual Christmas party at which a good time was had by all.

The officers, Dan Mirro, president; Jim Edwards, veep; Mike Lopez, secretary; and Tom Convery, treasurer; deserve much credit for making this year a success.

TO stimulate scholarship, to serve the school, to enjoy good fellowship—these are the goals of the Pallas Club, the sophomore girls' honor club of Hempstead High School. During the year, the girls have worked toward these goals in their many and varied activities.

In addition to maintaining their high academic average, the members of the club found time to sell programs at home football games, act as guides for Open House, and take an educational trip to New York City to see the United Nations in action. A pleasure trip to the city was also one of the enjoyable events of the year. The Pallas Club frequently has joint meetings with the sophomore boys honor club, the Junto Club.

Occasionally a guest speaker was invited to the meetings. At one, for example, Miss MacDougall showed some very interesting and beautiful slides of her trip to Europe. At another, Mrs. Hueston spoke on scholarships; a subject quite appropriate and interesting to members of an honor club.

Miss Gunnerson, the faculty advisor, guided the activities of the Pallas Club this year. Student leadership was in the hands of Elaine Scalone, president, Barbara O'Brien, vice-president, Phyllis Lupia, in charge of the club's money, and Carole Louis who filled the position of secretary.

Co-operative Retailing

RETAILING I, which deals with all phases of retail buying and the study of textile and non-textile merchandising, is open to both juniors and seniors; whereas Retailing II, for seniors only, embraces business management, advertising, display, buying and sales promotion.

These Retailing I and II students hold part-time jobs in retail stores. They are excused at the end of the sixth period in most cases. Some of them work on a daily basis; others work only on evenings and week-ends. The reward of these forty-five students at the finish of this elective course is an extra unit for graduation. Many of the students in the course stay on in the employment of their choice and are often promoted to the rank of junior executives.

Five members of the Co-operative Retailing organization have the honor of serving on the Jr. Advisory Board of B. Altman & Co. of New York. These elite are: Phyllis Herman, Russel Sinfield, Arnold Fischer, Ann Pingel and Francis Napolitano.

Among the students participating in the buying contest sponsored by the S. Klein store in West Hempstead, Phyllis Hermann received the award giving to the one winning participant from Hempstead High School.

Another of this busy organization's many activities was the interesting trip it took through Saks Fifth Avenue and B. Altman and Company.

WOULD you like to be able to do dances from various countries? If so, you should join the Folk Dance Club. This year the club consisted of freshmen and sophomores—approximately twenty-five girls and twenty-five boys. The only requirement for this club is the ability to walk. After two or three meetings, you'll go dancing through the halls.

The club meets at Prospect Street School on Mondays about four o'clock. There you will hear Mr. Franz, the faculty advisor, and teacher, calling out numerous calls and shouts. He's been doing this since 1941 when he first started "calling" for the P.T.A. square dances. Mr. Franz then thought that a Folk Dance Club would be a good way for those "shy" boys to meet those "talented" girls. Finally in 1954 his wish was realized and as a result we have another popular extra-curricular activity.

The meetings are given over to learning all types of dances taught by Mr. Franz, who in turn is taught new dances by students with a foreign background.

The Folk Dance Club takes part in all P.T.A. square dances and also offers, for the enjoyment of all an exhibition of their folk dancing during intermissions.

This year, club leadership was in the hands of two very capable girls: Carmelo Toronto, treasurer, and Virginia Pluto, secretary, who guided the club through another very enjoyable year of folk dancing.

Varsity Club

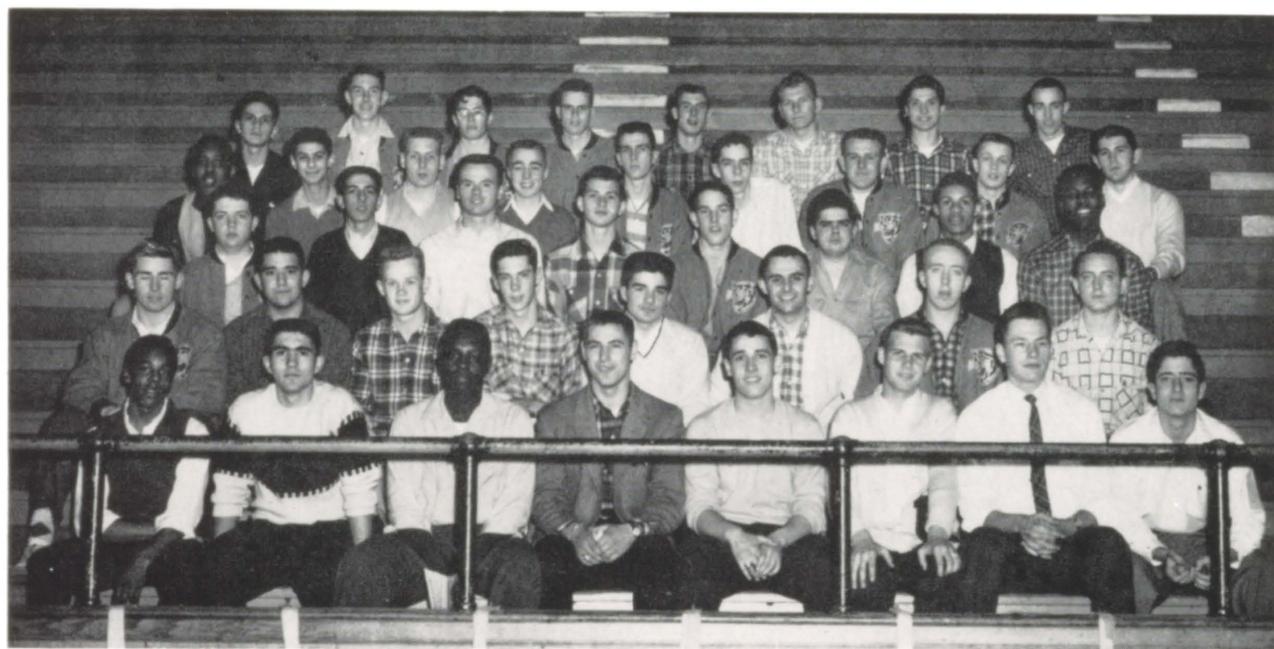

ALTHOUGH this year's Varsity Club was late in getting started, its principles were still being carried out behind the scenes. The aims of the club are to promote a closer relationship between the athletic and academic divisions of school life, to establish a good feeling of sportsmanship between the spectator-students and the players, and finally to help the members of the club obtain college scholarships.

In order to become a member of this greatly honored club one must have been awarded a varsity letter in any one of these ten sports—football, cross-country, basketball, rifle, bowling, track, golf, tennis, baseball, and softball. One must also be in good standing, academically, and have a good office record.

Under the supervision of Mr. Schuessler, the forty active members strive to work very closely with the Booster Club and serve on the Sports Patrol at home athletic events. They can be identified not only by their proudly worn blue and grey jackets, but also by the white Sports Patrol windbreakers.

Another unusual feature of V. C. elections is that a particular sport can be represented in not more than one office. This year the officers were: president, Carl Stahl—football; vice-president, Ted Judd—track; secretary, Eugene Temple—basketball; treasurer, Jim Turnbull—softball; masters at arms, Bill Vanderminden—rifle, Joe Chicco—baseball.

THE dictionary defines "integrity" as "... soundness of moral principle and character; uprightness; honesty . . ." That is the one word Mrs. Schryver, who is in charge of the Secretarial Service Squad, used to describe the qualifications of the sixteen girls in this organization. Honesty is very important, since these girls type and stencil the exams for the teachers in the high school. One can readily see this would be a very tempting situation!

The second most important requirement to be a member of this squad is ability. Those girls who work in the mimeo room during the first four periods, possess a certain amount of dexterity which is required to operate the different machines. Among these are the electric mimeo, electric ditto, and the mimeo which is run manually. In addition to tending these machines, the girls cut stencils, proofread and type master copies. The absentee lists and homeroom notices are also run off by these competent girls.

In case any problems arise in the mimeograph room, the girls turn to a member of the Commercial Department who is supervising at the time. These teachers are Miss Leo, Miss Bringhurst, Mr. Helbach, and Mr. Flax.

Working on the Secretarial Service Squad gives these girls extra training for future work in offices. Most of the staff expects to enter the secretarial field upon graduation.

Camera Club

EAGERLY interested in the art of taking and developing pictures, the members of the Camera Club come to appreciate and share with pleasure the other important phases of picture-taking. Under the guidance of Mr. Smith, these future photographers have shown great interest in its agenda for the year. One of the places where you will never fail to find two or three of the members after school is in the dark room editing and developing some of their photographs.

Heading the activities for this year was the "Miss Princess Contest," which was held among the members. Although they were amateurs, they produced some very fine and promising work. On a trip to the Photo Finishing Plant in Hempstead, the boys snapped up new and useful ideas.

A series of illustrated lectures from Eastern Kodak and a film from General Electric proved very interesting. They dealt with the use of flashbulbs and colored picture-taking. The art of taking pictures at night also aroused interest in these future fotogs.

This year the Camera Club was composed of about fifteen boys. Doing a fine job for these boys as president was Juri Toomre. Holding the office of veep was Ricardo Chin and secretary, Steve Negler. Roy Feldman had the job of stocking the finances.

THIS year the Principal's Service Squad consists of thirteen carefully chosen members. After much deliberation on the part of Mr. Beddow, their counselors, and their teachers, the girls were selected for an interview with Mr. Beddow. Then the final choice was made. The girls participated in a period of training under Mrs. Pashley's supervision before becoming an active member of the Squad.

Their main task, a complicated one, is operating the switchboard. The girls must have some knowledge of almost every school activity in order to be able to answer the many questions asked of them. This store of knowledge must include such things as school plans, schedules, activities and absentees. The girls must be up-to-date on exactly which extra-curricular activity is taking place at the time. Information of this type is posted in the office to help them in the face of a problem. Acting as messengers to different parts of the school is also part of their schedule.

Membership on the Squad does not mean all work and no fun, however. A Christmas party and a picnic are held annually for the girls.

This year the girls set an excellent example for others to follow by proving themselves to be efficient, polite and courteous.

Pen and Ink Club

EXTRA! "Honor Club Requirements Tightened to 93% Average." If you were a member of Pen and Ink early in the semester these headlines in the Patriot would have meant a great deal to you. They would have warned you that your honor goal was getting harder and harder to attain.

Eligibility for Pen and Ink, however, just isn't scholarship but also leadership and service. The majestic gold ink bottle and pen on a field of purple have long been the symbols of this honorable organization. With the guidance of deeply-interested advisors, Miss Abbott and Mrs. Stilger, the club this year has witnessed a varied and inspiring program. Slides were shown on Spain and France, talks were given on music appreciation, art, Red Cross, and college, and trips were taken to see the musical, "Damn Yankees," the United Nations building, and a ballet. An outside speaker gave a very informative talk on cerebral palsy. Highlighting the entire year was the Mother and Daughter tea in the spring, at which the mothers were honored. The Pen and Ink Club has also served as ushers at the P. T. A. Open House in the late fall.

Heading the list of able leaders was Carolyn Van Tassel, president. Assisting her were Barbara Holtz, vice-president; Leonora Ruggieri, secretary; and Dvora Sesskin, treasurer.

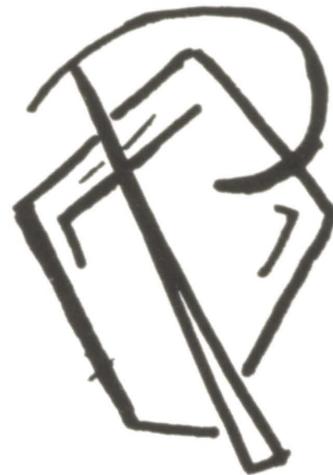

It is said that it is getting harder to get ahead in this world. The same is true in Hempstead High School. This year it was more difficult to become a member of the Pentagon Club than ever before; a new high average of 93 per cent was required. Despite their good marks, these junior and senior boys were in many activities and were the all-around leaders in the school. Because they were so busy, no special dates were set for the meetings; a day was chosen once a month when most of the boys could attend. At these meetings the members usually worked on scholarship examinations. Occasionally a teacher spoke to them about his special subject to help them on a particular section of the exam such as art, music, or mathematics.

The big project of the year was a senior magazine which contained articles about seniors, not included in the Colonial or the Patriot. In it were such pieces as a class will and prophecy.

Two pins are awarded by the club each year; one to the boy who was of the most service to the club, and the other to the boy attaining the highest average. Last year the recipients were, respectively, Lawrence Spiro and Norman Levine.

The officers elected to the club this year were: Allen Frost, president; George Flint, vice-president; Martin Thumim, secretary; and Kirk Graves, treasurer.

Footlight Club

THIS year the Footlight Club under the able guidance of its advisor, Miss Randall, made a big change in its policy. It presented a series of dramatic plays as a part of assembly and homeroom programs. The new policy added variety to the material and gave more students greater opportunity to participate.

This new policy has met with a great deal of success and much credit should be given to the students both in front of and behind the scenes, who worked so hard to make it a success.

The list of this year's officers was headed by Roger Cotta, president; followed by Albert Gruber, vice-president; Wilma MacCormack, writing the minutes; and Marina Barone, holding the strings on the money bags.

THIS year the Sophomore Dramatic Workshop experimented with something new. It was a plan of action; instead of working on one play all year it decided to concentrate its efforts to the production of several scenes from name plays and several one act plays.

The main objective of this club is to give its members experience in the acting and production of plays. Through the many plays that were produced, the members had a chance to show their ability to act. Some proved their ability to write plays, several of which were produced and met with wide acclaim.

Mel Fox and Nancy Goldberg in the Christmas Play.

With Miss Randall, the advisor, "giving the cues," and Tom Convery, the president, assisting, the Sophomore Dramatic Workshop produced approximately 4 plays this year. Next year, the students of Hempstead High can look forward to repeat performances by the Sophomore Dramatic Workshop.

Key Klickers

ATENTION all junior and senior girls business students who wish to enjoy themselves while acquiring useful data about their future employment! Report to the Key Klickers under Miss Silver to learn about your future field of employment.

This group has been in existence for more than ten years under the leadership of Miss Anne Silver. The girls receive cultural and professional advice from various speakers.

On the second Thursday of each month the members meet to discuss trips, parties and the speakers they hope to engage. Among their planned trips were an excursion to New York City to see the musical-comedy "Damn Yankees" and a trip to Bear Mountain in the Spring. Their meetings fall into three categories: professional meetings at which speakers address the club; social meetings which plan parties for Christmas and June; and the service meetings at which the Easter activities for hospitals and the poor are discussed and acted upon. In June the juniors give the seniors a farewell party.

The officers who see that the club is always running smoothly are Angela Filiberto, president; Priscilla DiPong, vice-president; Joan Iovino and Blanch Raimondo, secretaries first and second semesters respectively; and Patricia Baltzer, treasurer.

HURRY, Hustle, Haste! You may think of these words when you see a girl passing the halls with pink slips in her hand.

These twelve sophomore, junior and senior girls of Office 5 work under the supervision of Miss Ronnermann. They aid in the functions of Office 5 by filing, typing and receiving visitors to our school. New students are guided around the school and introduced to its facilities. Mr. Pill and Mr. Prahls daily appointments are kept running smoothly largely through the efforts of these girls who, each day, make up the pink call slips from the official appointment book. This is a task requiring thought and care; it is performed most diligently by these girls. Most of them start as sophomores and work through their senior year.

Mr. Pill organized this group in 1950 with the intention of helping the office and the students. He wanted the girls to help with small jobs that he and the other members of Office 5 didn't have time to do. Mr. Prahls, the freshman advisor; the secretaries, Miss Ronnermann, and Miss Merrick, and Mr. Pill all derive a great deal of assistance from these hard-working girls.

This year the squad will be depleted by one-half of its members who are graduating in June. Among these girls is the chief, Carolyn Coyle. However, judging from the past, there will be competent successors to these girls.

Junior Science Club

THIS year, instead of one club, there were two divisions, the Freshman Science Club and the Sophomore Science Club, both of which were under the supervision of Mr. Lawson.

During regents week, both clubs took a field trip to the Nassau County Police Laboratory in Mineola, where they were taken on a guided tour of the building.

At a joint meeting of the clubs, Mrs. Lawson talked on "Medical Technology and Toxicology." At another meeting, Mr. Pill discussed various

President of the sophomore club this year, was Roy Feldman. Assisting him were Daniel Mirro as vice-president, Dawn Thomas, as secretary, and Mario Salerno, as treasurer. The freshman club was headed by Carolyn Matu-siewsk and she in turn was assisted by Larry Lem, vice-president; Jeffrey Burnoski, secretary; and Rem Solomon, treasurer.

Senior Science Club

OVER the years science has played a very important part in our lives. Great strides have been taken in this field by ambitious scientists who work for the good of mankind. The Senior Science Club is composed of scientific-minded juniors and seniors who, realizing how important this field is, have gathered together to increase their knowledge of things scientific.

Meeting once a month in room 77 with their advisor Mr. Faust, they continue to learn more about the fascinating field of science. Reports on new developments in various scientific fields were made by members. These proved to be very interesting to the other members of the club. The members carried out many fascinating and enlightening experiments in the latter part of the spring.

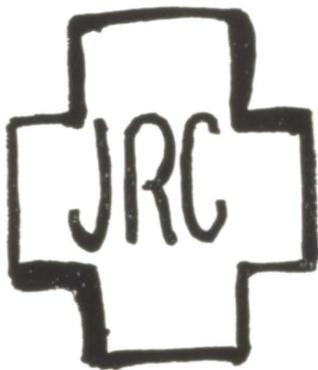

One of the oldest clubs in the school, the Senior Science Club was founded years ago by eager and forward-looking students.

This year's club chose as its officers: George Grella, president; Louis Sciscenti, vice-president; Marcella Broderick, secretary; and Louis Reimer, treasurer.

HELPING the underprivileged is the aim of a very commendable organization in Hempstead High School—the Junior Red Cross. Composed of a representative and an alternate chosen from each homeroom, this organization is mainly interested in social welfare work. The services rendered by the Junior Red Cross do not go to anyone in general but to the less fortunate youth of the community and the world.

Listed as accomplishments for the year are donations of cookies to Mitchell Hospital, sending gift boxes to children in overseas schools, filling a need as receptionists at the blood bank in Mineola, sending Christmas stockings to veterans' hospitals and compiling a scrapbook of not only our school but also of the township of Hempstead. In December, the Junior Red Cross, in co-operation with the Commercial Club, made Christmas a little happier for the children in local hospitals by making little favors for them.

Acting under the direction of Mrs. Mary Bowen were president, Richard Courtney; vice-president, Kay Werner; secretary, Maureen Carney; and treasurer, Audrey Comstock. Through this organization's program of good will, bonds of friendship are being strengthened all over the world.

Cafeteria Squad

ROAST beef, tender and succulent; "franks" and beans, hot and spicy; these are two of the many good things offered in the cafeteria. Responsibility for creating these tantalizing dishes lies with the cafeteria squad.

Between the fourth and seventh periods the lunch room becomes a beehive of activity as a large number of the students in Hempstead High eat there. Mr. Tobani and his staff have their hands full with the preparation and serving of lunches, selling desserts, candies, and ice cream, and washing the dishes in time for them to be ready for the next lunch period. The students' lunches are not the only concern of the cafeteria squad; many extra hours are devoted to the preparation and serving of teas and dinners for Hempstead High's extra-curricular activities.

Even though Mr. Tobani and his staff have to receive and store the many cases of food that arrive daily, they find time to keep the stainless steel kitchen always meticulously clean. This is in addition to carrying on the normal work.

The teachers who have lunch duty each period are vital to keeping our lunch room a quiet, neat, and pleasant place in which to eat. To them, Mr. Tobani and his staff, a vote of thanks is in order.

THE purpose of the Pre-Nursing Club is to acquaint girls with nursing and to point out the requirements for a nursing career. Some of the girls do actual work in the nurse's office and are briefed on nursing technique. Occasionally, they assist with medical attention. Miss Best, advisor of the Pre-Nursing Club, had only one group this year. In the past, the club had been composed of three large groups, including all grades. This number, however, became too large to manage satisfactorily.

The club participated in several activities during 1955 and 1956, all of which proved successful and interesting as well as educational. The Pre-Nursing Club joined forces with the German Club and enjoyed a delightful Christmas party. On Parents' Night, about thirty mothers and fathers listened to a speaker from the Flower Fifth Avenue Hospital in New York City. Mr. Pill also spoke at this meeting. Movies were shown and home-made refreshments were served. In the spring, the club visited the Naval Hospital in Brooklyn.

The officers: Betty Ulsch, president; Judy Kohsiek, vice-president; Arline Lesser, secretary; and Lucille Lembo, treasurer, celebrated with the other members—35 in number—the Pre-Nursing Club's fourth anniversary this year.

Spanish Club

¿HABLA Ud. español? Well, if you are studying Spanish and haven't joined the Spanish Club you're missing a treat, for, hasn't club, under the able guidance of Mrs. Stilger, has engaged in many interesting activities.

To highlight the beginning of the year, the entire club went on an excursion to New York City. Visiting the Hispanic Museum and the San Juan movie theatre, the members concluded the day with an enticing dinner of "arroz con pollo" at "El Quijote." When the Christmas season rolled around everyone attended a real "fiesta" at which the traditional "pinata" was broken and "Turron" (an almond candy) was enjoyed by all. Early in the new year the play "En Casa de Dona Paz" was presented by the Spanish IV class. As an outside activity many members participated in poetry contests and saw plays and movies at both Hofstra and Adelphi colleges. To bring the year to a spectacular close the club took a trip to the Cloisters, went to a Spanish theatre, and dined at a Spanish restaurant.

The club met monthly under the leadership of Linda Tannenbaum, president; Kathy Vollmer, vice-president; Grace Felicetti, secretary; and Levi Muray, treasurer. Through the various activities engaged in this year, these officers succeeded in providing for the members a vicarious trip to the Spanish-speaking world and instilled in the members a deeper appreciation of Spanish and its historical significance.

THIS year, one of the largest and most active clubs in Hempstead High School is the Latin Club, with a record number of sixty-one members. This club is open to all students of Latin regardless of whether they are still studying that language.

A very important project this year, as in the past, was the sale of Christmas cards and wrapping paper to raise funds. An award was presented at the end of the year to a student who excelled in Latin and who contributed most to the Latin Club.

Much credit goes to the program chairman, Zelda Greenspan, and her committee for the many interesting and varied programs they presented for our enjoyment. Credit also goes to Carol Louis and her committee for the delicious refreshments served to the "growing" boys and girls in the club.

At one meeting, colored slides of Europe were shown. Everyone will agree that a wonderful time was had by all at the annual Christmas Party. As part of the program, a play was read in which everyone participated. Then, well-known and beloved Christmas carols were sung in Latin.

The club planned several enjoyable trips to the "Great White Way" with their advisor, Miss Winter. The first of these was an excursion to see "Pipe Dream."

The very able leaders of the club were: Christine Eriksen, first consul; Lance Lazo, second consul; Ingrid Sheldon, scriba; and Janette Pizzicola, quaestor.

French Club

FRENCH students interested in a greater understanding of French culture meet together once a month as Le Cercle Francais. Through the enthusiastic guidance of Mrs. Young and the careful planning of the program committee, the members enjoyed many interesting and informative programs. To continue a practice of previous years, the French Club again contributed to the fund for LaFamille, a French orphanage.

In the spring, the members of the club took a trip to New York City to visit the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and dined at a French restaurant—a new experience for many of them.

Some of the students attended the local theatres where French films were being shown. A novel experience greeted the members who attended a performance by La Comedie Francaise, the great French National theatre, which toured the United States for the first time in its history.

This year two new officers were added to the executive board. Judy Leek was in charge of obtaining the refreshments which were served after each meeting, and Sandy Carpinelli did an excellent job of planning the monthly programs. The other officers were: Mary Drewal, president; Lois Pattison, vice-president; Elizabeth Hill, secretary; and Stuart Herz, Treasurer.

CONTRARY to the practice of having two groups, this year the German Club organized as one. Because the group was so much larger, they were unable to plan an excursion to New York City. However, the meetings were made as informative and interesting as possible. The group is mainly a social one, with films or slides to supplement the teaching in the German classes.

Special programs were planned throughout the year. The annual Christmas party was held in the girls' gym, and everyone participated in square dances which were called by Mr. Franz. In January, the traditional spelling bee was held with prizes awarded to the winners. Words were taken from the German I text books so that everyone could take part.

This year is the bi-centennial of Mozart's birth and in German and musical circles his music is being played. The German Club is no exception; one meeting was set aside expressly for enjoying the works of this famous composer.

At the end of each meeting, the members joined in the singing of German folk songs.

This year the members of the club elected Gunars Terauds, Henry Szabronski, Mary Lou Albright, and Aivars Jerumanis as president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer respectively. Miss Gunther and Mr. Leusch were the advisors.

Marching Band Entourage

C. Tucker, B. Noble, B. Sirois.

SOME schools have as a source of pride powerful athletic teams, a beautiful campus or some long-standing traditions. Hempstead is fortunate to have all these and something else—its famous marching band entourage.

As in the past, the band again marched onto the field to the tune of "South Rampart Street Parade." As the band split down the middle, the twirlers stepped to the fore and marched on downfield to "Say It With Music." The entire entourage then formed a block formation and proceeded to spell out "TIGERS."

Immediately after, the band went into a gigantic birthday cake formation, signifying the twenty-fifth anniversary of our troop. All the while the band played "The Anniversary Waltz." A new and spectacular part of the band show was the addition of fire twirling, performed by eight of our most accomplished twirlers simultaneously with the formation of the colossal cake.

The assemblage then moved quickly to form the numerals "25" to show the home crowds that this was the band's twenty-fifth birthday.

Fitting to the occasion was the band's rendition of "Happy Birthday" in loud and clear tones.

Following the birthday tribute, the ensemble went back into the block formation and spelled out, letter by letter a large "HEMPSTEAD," stretching across the entire field. The forming of the traditional block gave an opportunity to the twirlerettes to perform their much-admired and famous kick line. At performances this year the background music was "Five Foot Two." This segment of our band show always commands the attention and interest of the crowds in the stands.

Lembo, J. Kennedy, K. Murphy, G. Shell, R. Stotz, D. Hellriegel, J. Leek, P. Hannan, M. Bistyga, J. Nolan, M. Ostrosky, B. O'Brien, Mrs. Barry.

At the sound of the bus horn everyone scurried in different directions and, as it seemed from the stands, no one in the right one. However, everything always came out all right and the result was inevitably the same; the band was in its widely-celebrated school bus formation and was ready to leave the field while playing "The Merry Oldsmobile." The wheels of the bus which seemed to rotate as it moved forward were formed by moving circles of twirlerettes.

The reason the band as a whole was spectacular was because all its component parts were also spectacular. The various parts comprising the band were: the band itself, twirlerettes, twirlers, high steppers, majorette, glockenspiel corps, and cheerleaders. Taken separately, Barbara Noble was outstanding as drum majorette and needless to say the other twirling groups under Miss Barry's leadership also excelled. As popular as ever, a vital part of the entourage, were the cheerleaders who were present at all games. They were captained by Carmel Catalano and Diane Sofield.

The Hempstead marching band has reached heights not even approached by other local school bands. Mr. Albinski's group has been favorably compared with bands the country over, having had writeups in many large magazines and newspapers.

Playing away again, the Tigers traveled to Massapequa where bad luck began to plague them. Massapequa capitalized on this to defeat our team 14-6.

The following week, Hempstead took on the Maroons of Mineola in another away game. The Tigers played hard and well. However, bad breaks enabled Mineola to score and defeat them 12-7.

The stands were packed for our first home game as Hempstead completely controlled Baldwin and rolled to a 14-0 victory.

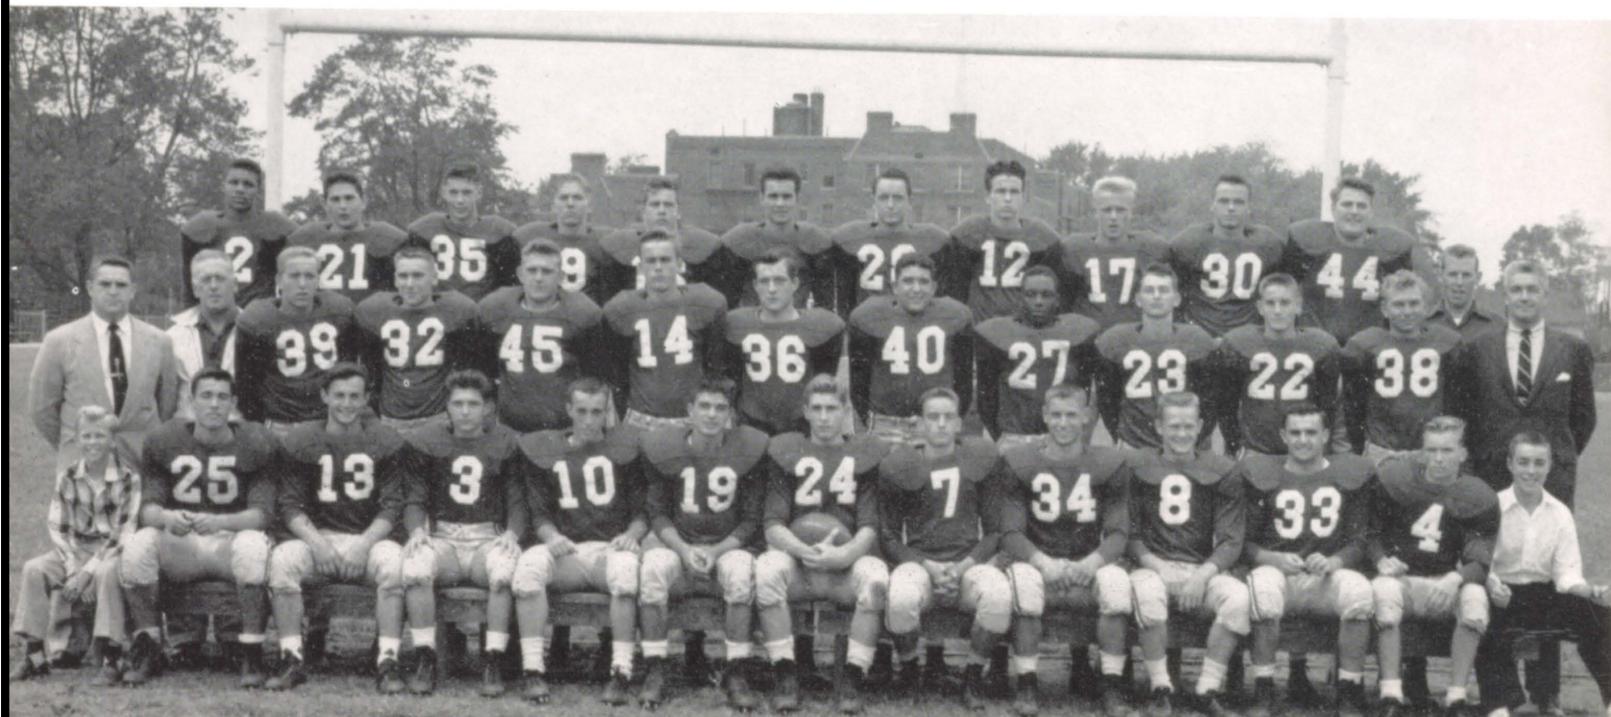

Traveling again, the Tigers went to Sewanhaka. Hempstead fought well, but was outplayed by the Indian powerhouse to the score of 23-6.

Home again, our varsity outclashed Glen Cove 19-12 to retain possession of the coveted Chapman Memorial Bell.

"2-3-4" . . . a quick fake, a handoff, and the hard running Hempstead backfield plowed through the opposition for another gain. A series of long gains followed by a bad break was characteristic of this season for the Hempstead Tigers.

The season began as Freeport's Red Devils crushed Hempstead, 30-0 under the night lights of Freeport Stadium.

Maybe he should have gone around left end.

Playing at home once more, the Tigers went down to a disappointing 21-7 loss to Valley Stream Central.

Ending the season in Hempstead, the Tigers fought gamely in the mud, and this time had what it took to whip Mephram 12-11, for a well-deserved win.

Joe Ficarra blocks a pass against Central.

Brad Griffin about to interrupt the Central carrier.

Sparking the 1955 Tigers were Captain George Dempster, who switched from his all-scholastic guard position to halfback, Don Kornrump, Carl Stahl, Joe Chicco, and George Puerchner. Quarter-back John Edwards did a fine job of calling the plays. Coach Schuessler and assistant coaches Beck and Keenan expect to have a very good 1956 season, as there are many of this year's stars returning; besides a good group of prospects are coming up for the J. V.

stead held the top spot, but it was finally knocked down into second place on the final day of the season.

Entering the county playoffs, Hempstead again was given little chance of progressing further than the quarter-finals. However, with the Monteiro-Bookhard backcourt combination and Jim Maguire and Gene Temple snaring rebounds, Hempstead upended Massapequa 61-50. Next, they avenged earlier defeats by hurdling tough Mineola, and Lynbrook. Then came the crushing 66-52 defeat of West Hempstead to cop the Nassau County title for the Tigers and in addition cop the "Coach of the Year" title for Johnny Mills. It was in this game that Monteiro distinguished himself as the "best little man" in the county, thus earning a position on the "All-Scholastic," teams of the local press.

Next year coach Mills faces a rebuilding job, but with his ability to make a "little go a long way" you may be sure it will be a successful one.

ACCORDING to the "experts," at the onset of the basketball season, the Tigers were supposed to be the doormat of Section I. Needless to say, things didn't quite turn out this way. Although the Tigers started slowly, losing four of their first seven games, they soon righted themselves. When the league games commenced the Hub team rolled up a seven and three league mark. Throughout most of the campaign, Hemp-

Varsity Baseball

IN accordance with the true Tiger spirit which has not been so much in evidence of late, the members of our varsity baseball team worked as they never had before and through their efforts won for themselves and their classmates the title of "SSAL Section I Champs" of 1955.

The season began with a win over Mephram. Most of the remaining games followed suit with the exception of the return games with Mephram and Sewanhaka and the first game with Lawrence, which we lost. The season thus wound up with a tally of 7 wins to 3 losses in league games. The most exciting and most memorable event of the season by unanimous agreement was the play-off with Lynbrook for the SSAL county championship, a two-day, winning game, carrying a score of 0-0 all the way through. Finally on the second day of the game, Lynbrook came home thus ending and winning the game by a 1-0 score.

Credit for exceptional playing should be given to All-Scholastic Tom Forbes, pitcher, and Kenny Christie, outfielder and to captain, Butch Caliendo. Other contributors to this excellent season include George Dempster, catcher; Ben Plawski, pitcher; Jim Hawks, outfielder; Pete Tsairis, short-stop; Allan Frost, pitcher; Joe Chicco, Utility; Dick Sturtevant, first; Don Kornrumpf, second; and Jim Sherman, third, all of whom are returning for the '56 season.

Our hearty congratulations to the '55 team and our sincere good wishes for our '56 team. We know now that the old Tiger spirit is still pretty much alive.

Varsity Track

Over he goes. Bob Drost.

SPEED, speed, and more speed. Those were the key words of a highly successful season for the Hempstead track team.

Under the excellent coaching of Mr. Krause, the team compiled a 5-1 record.

The season started off with a booming victory over Baldwin's spikemen. Another win of much the same order soon followed as the Tigers ran all over Lawrence.

Soon the "good word" became "Beat Sewanhaka" as Mr. Krause and the team worked overtime to be up for this one. Unfortunately the Indians had speed to spare and thus squeezed through.

The Tigers soon recovered and went on to clear-cut victories over Valley Stream Central, Mepham and Freeport.

The team was able to place second in both the Section I and the S. S. A. L. championship meets.

Leading the trackmen to victory was captain Dick Duswalt who high jumped and consistently cleared the bar in the pole vault; his outstanding feat being his tying for the state championship. Also consistent scorers were speedy John Madigan and George Puerschner. Jim Donady was our top miler. Renowned throughout scholastic track circles was our crack 880 relay team of Sonny King Bob Heany, Brod Griffin, and George Puerschner.

With such stars as Puerschner, Madigan, and Donady returning, the team is sure to go a long way this season.

Rifle Team

AS usual, riflery was a sport which attracted a few spectators, although it was enjoyed thoroughly by those participating in it.

This year the rifle team was not quite so strong as it has been in the past although the nimrods still managed to cop third place in the Southeast Loop of the Nassau Scholastic Rifle League.

Once again our rifle team was hit hard by graduation and no returning veterans. Ably coached by Mr. Voohries, the team was composed of a group of boys who never before had entered a varsity match. Mr. Voohries built up a team which was good enough to attain a fairly respectable position in its league which included such teams as Freeport, Mephram, Baldwin, Wantagh, and Massapequa. Last year the Tiger marksmen were section eight leaders for the fifth straight year.

The 1955-56 team was led by the fine shooting of Bill VanderMinden, Henry Szabronski, Gunars Terauds, Ronald Schilpp, Harvey Fischer, and Bob Von Elm.

This year's Junior Varsity Rifle team was very strong, scoring in excellent matches throughout their league. Mr. Voorhies assures us that in the next year or so, much will be heard from the Hempstead rifle team.

Country

DESPITE the handicap of a squad of about fifteen boys out for cross country this season, our coach Mr. Franz showed his skill in building a valuable squad of runners who gave stiff competition to the rest of the league.

Hempstead's harriers came through quite well with a five and four record in regular competition. Our boys polished off Valley Stream, Massapequa, Lynbrook, Malverne, and Baldwin, while dropping contests to Freeport, Mepham, Oceanside, and powerful Sewanhaka.

With stars like captain Jim Donady, "Whitey" Stenberg, Artie Mansfield, Irv Duffy, and Steve Gillen, Hempstead placed fifth in the Section I SSAL, title meet, and fourth in Section VIII. Donady won the honor of being chosen to represent Hempstead as one of the fourteen boys from L. I. participating in the Intersectional Class A meet at Bear Mountain, where he turned in his usual creditable performance.

In view of the cross country team's performance this year it is clear that Hempstead is holding its own well against the opposition. We look forward with high hopes to an even better showing next year.

Softball

THE Hempstead High softball team of 1955, as usual, had another great victory over Baldwin. This was followed by an even more crushing 22-2 performance over South Side. Determined to defend their SSAL title of the previous year, the Tigers kept rolling and white-washed Sewanhaka by the score of 4-0. Valley Stream Central put a crimp in the team's winning ways, however, by handing them a 13-7 defeat. The boys came right back though, taking another decision from Baldwin, this time by the score of 13-3. Sewanhaka, avenging its earlier shutout, presented the Hempsteadites with their second loss, a close 3-1 contest. After that, there was no stopping the Tigers as they finished out the season with two more victories, the first over South Side 11-1, and the second against Valley Stream, with a 15-2 final score.

As the regular season ended in a tie, Baldwin and Hempstead having earned identical 6-2 records, a play-off game was necessary. The game was a hard-fought contest with the Hempstead "9" edging Baldwin 9-8, thanks to the splendid performance of hitting and pitching turned in by Hank Buthman. This victory once again gave the Tigers the SSAL championship.

Gene Temple and Jim Turnbull aided Buthman with the year's pitching chores, and the consistent hitting of such players as Brian Hutchinson, Art Bernecker, Jon Cheshire, and Charlie Hagenah contributed to the team's success and accounted for the large number of runs scored throughout the season.

As usual, a great deal of credit must be given to the softball team's coach, Mr. Mills, who seems to make a habit of producing a championship squad. We look forward to another successful year in 1956.

Bowling

WITH several veterans returning from last year's team, the 1956 Hempstead keglers put on a sustained drive in the last week of play to top the Section I South Shore Athletic League by 1½ games and finish second in the league roll-off. This can be attributed to the consistency and spirit with which the boys bowled.

Ben Plawski, who led the league in average, captained one of Hempstead's best teams in the last five years. He was ably assisted by Ed Ziminski, Bob Winter, Jim McNamara, and Bob Kroskrity.

The outlook for next year isn't too bright because of the fact that the only holdover is Bob Winter. However, coach Levin says his rebuilding job will be eased considerably by some good talent coming up from the J. V. team.

Tennis

LAST season our net-men got off on the wrong foot by dropping a close 3-2 decision to Malverne and never seemed able to put on a sustained winning streak thereafter. However, a much improved team is in sight for next year. This conclusion can be backed up by the following facts: Hempstead, out of a nine game schedule, dropped five 3-2 decisions; out of the eight players participating last season, more than half are holdovers; some of our players got to the quarter-finals of the S. S. A. L. sectionals; finally, the team showed coach Menza what their actual capabilities were by trouncing a favored Sewanhaka team 4-1. There are good reasons to hope for a better season in '56.

Golf

THE 1955 golf season was a much more successful one than those of previous years for Hempstead High's golf team. Mr. Faust, the coach, again demonstrated his ability to create a squad of players who were good enough to capture their first five out of six matches. Climaxing the regular season, the boys split two contests with Lawrence, with whom they gained a first place tie by winning the first, 3-2, but dropping the second, 4-1. After topping Lawrence 4-1 for the S. S. A. L. title, our Tigers also copped the Section 8 championship.

Accounting for the team's success was the fact that experienced golfers, such as Captain Barry Hawkins, Frank Dussel, George White-law, and Frank Campbell, returned to contribute their skill to this season's encounters.

J. V. Football

THIS year's Junior Varsity football team was the unofficial champ of the J.V. circuit with a 7-1 record, unofficial champ only because the circuit does not recognize league positions.

Although the Tigers got off to a bad start with a 13-0 loss to the much more experienced Freeport eleven, they at once clawed their way back into winning ways by beating Massapequa 12-0 the following week. Since more than half the squad had never played organized football before, this win was all the incentive the inexperienced Jay Veers' needed. They continued on their victory march by trampling Mineola 19-6 and crushing Central 13-6.

They liquidated hapless Baldwin 41-7, their season's single high score. The last three games of the season were shutout victories for the Tiger gridders: 18-0 over Sewanhaka, 25-0 over Uniondale, 13-10 over Mephram. In a way this last victory was a vengeful one, for Mephram earlier had beaten Freeport who in turn had been the only team to defeat Hempstead. However, the Tigers' best all around game was against a strong Sewanhaka eleven.

The final statistics show that three ends and seven backs took part in scoring Hempstead's 141 points.

This season's gridiron success can be attributed to: Linemen—George Putland, Bill Jackey, John Carney, Jack Whitehurst, Butch Lopez. Ends—John Jackowski, Art Koehler. Backs—Jim Edwards, Sonny Glasko, Fred Richards, Bob Meko, Bob Willett. All the boys mentioned, and many others certainly did their best. However, we must not overlook the terrific job of coaching done single-handedly by Mr. George Wilson. In twenty-four years of coaching football, Mr. Wilson has had only one team below the .500 mark.

J. V. Basketball

ONE purpose of J. V. basketball, aside from giving underclassmen the chance to play on a team in league competition, is the molding of future varsity players. This year's team, consisting entirely of sophomores, is a good indication of what the school can look forward to in next year's varsity.

Starting off the season, the junior hoopsters took on the Long Beach "five" and emerged victorious by the score of 46-36. The boys put on a strong performance against Lynbrook with three Hempstead players hitting double figures, but the team came out on the short end of a 48-44 final tally. Westbury then went down to defeat at the hands of our hustling J. V. squad, 71-48. The team ripped off a quick string of victories, winning eight of their first eleven games.

Following a close loss to Valley Stream, the Tigers tore into Mephram and Baldwin for two more wins. After the boys had caused the Pirates to walk the plank, 66-45, they took the measure of the Golden Wave, this time the outcome being 59-48.

Coming down the homestretch, the Jay Vees scored a revenge triumph over Valley Stream 64-61. The season's finale featured a 48-43 defeat of a powerful Mephram team.

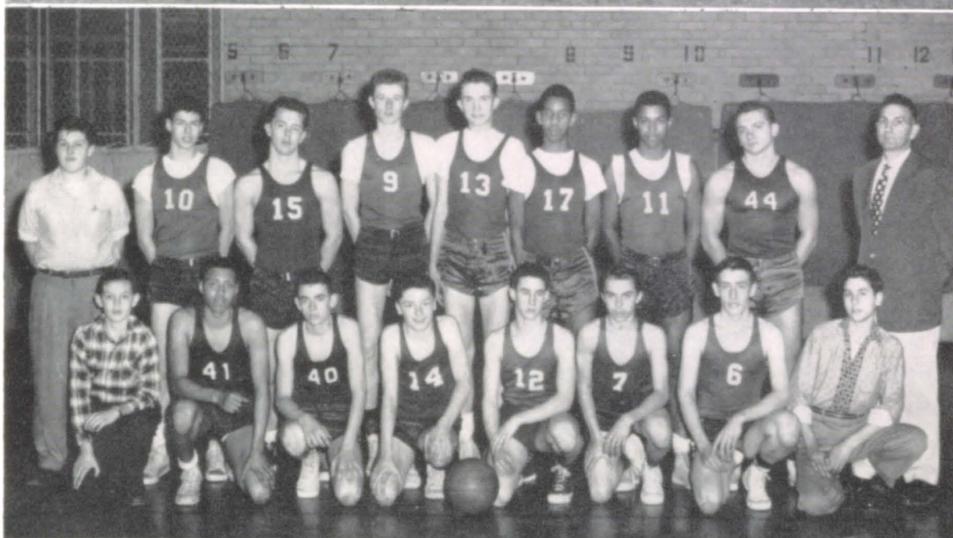

Mr. Krause, the J. V. coach, has reason to be proud, for the team, although comparatively short, compiled a rather impressive 12-5 overall record. The prospects look excellent for this group of boys who will compose the varsity squad for the next couple of years.

The outstanding players on this year's team were, high-scorer Bill Jackey, Bland Bookhard, Angelo Paranifo, Tay Krause, and Max Brustmeyer.

Freshman Football

HEMPSTEAD HIGH SCHOOL points with pride to the successful performance of its freshman football team during the past year, under the direction of coach White.

Following two scrimmages with Freeport and Merrick Avenue Junior Highs, the conquering frosh went on to sweep three of their four remaining games. After dropping their first contest to Central, the Tiger Cubs roared back with three smashing victories over Baldwin, Sewanhaka, and Uniondale respectively.

Valuable contribution towards the success of this year's team was made by several players including such sparkplugs as Art Mason, Bob Mahoney, and Tom Ross.

From the impressive account they gave of themselves this year, it is safe to predict a bright future for this team in J.V. football. All Hempstead High will be rooting for them.

Freshman Basketball

THE 1955-1956 winter season proved to be a good one for the finest frosh basketball team Hempstead has had for some time.

Coach Francis' charges sputred to a 12-2 record and closed out the season as Freshman League champions.

The season started out well and the Tiger cubs soon took command of their league. They were able to play well all season to control frosh "5's" from the South Shore.

Their superior record is due to the all-around team play. However, the team was sparked by John Mackey, Jeff Caro and Ernie Yann. Also outstanding were Steve Midgette, Fritz Jensen and Howie Kalinski.

Mr. Francis says the team was composed of excellent prospects for further J. V. and Varsity teams.

Freshman Track

THE Hempstead frosh chargers dropped their initial start to a more experienced Sewanhaka team. However, in following the pattern set the year before, they soon overcame their early-season jitters and went unbeaten for the remainder of the regular season. This success can be attributed to the fine way coach Chase instilled confidence in his unseasoned team.

Again, in the Hempstead Invitation, our freshmen went down to defeat before the chargers from Floral Park by a margin of 7 1/6 points. Hempstead competitors who finished at least third in the Invitation were Fred Deal—hurdles, Tay Krause—880 yard dash, Bill Jackey—shot put, Bob Houston—broad jump, Mike Green—pole vault, and Dan Hayden—high jump.

Modern Dance Club

SOFT mood music, leotards, a wide open space and creative ability, all go together to form one of the most enjoyable and relaxing clubs available—The Modern Dance Club.

The motto, "Dance and you'll dance your cares away" is the main incentive and inspiration to the thirty girls who form the Modern Dance Club each year.

Each Friday afternoon during the 7th and 8th periods, these girls assemble to work on dance technique and to create original dances which are sometimes performed at various occasions.

The club is open to all junior and senior girls who are members of regular modern dance classes. Tryouts were held twice this year, once at the end of November and again at the end of December thus offering the girls a second chance to join the club. The girls were selected on the basis of style, rhythm, performance and creative ability.

The Modern Dance Club, under Mrs. Barry's capable leadership and with Murcia Steele as student leader, put on its main production of the year at Greek Games while other small ensembles performed at other occasions such as Class Night. It was generally agreed that all the performances were indeed fine showings of the talents of these girls.

Gym Aides

"GIRLS, today we shall play badminton. Gym Aides will you please get the equipment."

Getting the equipment is only one of the many jobs the Gym Aides do to assist the gym teachers, Mrs. Reicher and Mrs. Barry.

Each year a group of about thirty girls is chosen on the basis of their athletic abilities and their ability to get along with others. In the classes the Aides take attendance, run errands and do the little things the teachers would normally use class time to do. They also assist with the sports. Some of these sports are: badminton, ping-pong, basketball, and volleyball.

The Gym Aides function as a club and hold meetings three or four times a year where they discuss problems and learn the rules of new games. Betty Ultsch was the head of the club this year.

The coaches for Greek Games are usually chosen from among the Gym Aides as they have worked and coached the gym classes. Each Gym Aide is given a different activity in Greek Games to teach in gym classes.

Considering all these activities of the Gym Aides one can truly say that they are indispensable.

Sports Leaders

A GIRLS' sports leader, the chief aim of all athletically inclined junior and senior girls, is the highest rank offered to girl students by the Physical Education Department. Each year a group of girls is chosen from among the outstanding players of each sport. Selection is based on interest, skill, leadership, and sportsmanship.

This year Diane Sofield headed the cheerleaders with Carmelita Catalano assisting. Barbara Killian led badminton while Lois Fennelly presided over Greek Games. Claire Elznic coached softball and Joan Freudenberger headed bowling. Heading basketball was Thelma Watts. Murcia Steele danced her way to the head of Modern Dance. Barbara Vorhies, Connie Viscosi, Betty Ultsch presided over riding, pong pong and gym aides respectively.

Basketball

GIRLS' basketball, a sport which is definitely being revived in H. H. S., achieved a greater popularity this year than in previous years. The fine work of Mrs. Reicher and Mrs. Cullen, the able and well-liked coaches of the honor and reserve teams respectively, should indeed be noted along with the work of student leader and captain of the honor team, Thelma Watts.

Composing this year's honor team were, Barbara Killian, Dorothy Kitchens, Beth Lee, Claire Elznic, Ruth Stotz, Carolyn Crouch and Edwina Glasco.

The grand finale of the season came when our two teams participated in a five-school girls' basketball meet in which West Hempstead, Great Neck, Massapequa, Manhasset and Hempstead High School competed.

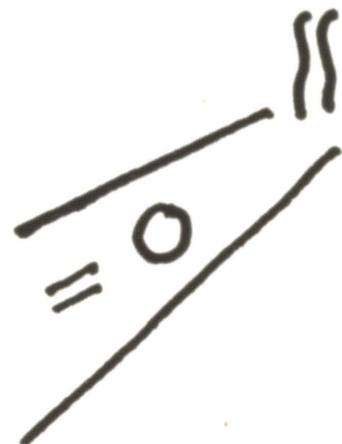

Bowling

STRIKE! That's the way it goes when you bowl with the Girls' Bowling Club. After a lot of practice, a strike is not unusual.

Every Wednesday afternoon the girls assembled to go to the Hempstead Recreation Center for bowling. The beginners who had never bowled were taught the fundamentals of bowling. Proper handling of the ball and standing position were taught to them. The others, who needed help in different ways were assisted by Joan Freudenberger who was the head for this year. Carolyn Crouch, Pat Shaw and Joen Freudenberger held the highest averages of the club in bowling.

Everyone who goes with the Girls' Bowling Club has a good time while learning to handle that big ball.

Softball

WHEN spring rolls around each year, we see a great bustle of activity in the vicinity of the girls' gym and ball field. Softballs, bats, bases and caps are taken out of mothballs and, lo and behold, softball is again in season.

After practicing for a few days, Mrs. Reicher, the girls' softball advisor and Claire Elznic, the student leader, set about the tasks of assigning the girls to the various positions to be held. The girls then divide into teams and these teams play each other.

Since last year was the first year Hempstead had a field for the girls, there were no games with other schools, but this year it is expected that inter-scholastic games will be instituted.

Badminton

BADMINTON as we know it today has changed little, so far as the fundamentals of playing and over-all purposes are concerned, since its birth somewhere in China about 50 B.C. Its long history indicates that here, indeed, is a game which possesses all the requirements for enjoyable competitive sport.

About twice a week during the past year a group of junior and senior girls met in a round-robin tournament.

This year Barbara Kilian showed her ability both as player and student leader of the group. Mrs. Reicher was on hand, as usual, to coach the players and see to it that rules and regulations were observed. The winners of the tournaments were Barbara Kilian and Alice Dean.

Riding Club

PINTOS, grays, sorrels, roans, chestnuts, are just a few of the many mounts you can pick from when you ride with the Wednesday Girls' Riding Club.

About twenty eager riders wait at the auditorium steps for the station wagon to come from the stables and pick them up for their adventurous ride. The bridle path is a beautiful lane around Hempstead Lake State Park.

The club rides for one happy hour when anything can happen and sometimes does. Before a girl can consider herself experienced as an equestrienne, she must dismount in a somewhat embarrassing way called falling.

The club is divided into three groups: the beginners, intermediates, and advanced riders. Each is taught how to become a better and more careful rider.

ONE of the most important events in the school life of a Sophomore girl in Hempstead High is the annual Greek Games. The Games are inspired by the authentic activities of the Athenian and Spartans in Greece. The events take skill and team work on the part of every one.

Some of the hardest work in Greek Games is the planning of the events. Each side has an Entrance Committee which decides how its team will enter. The Games are scored by points; each event counting a certain number of points for the team that wins it. At the end all the points are counted up and the team with the most points wins. The head of Greek Games was Ruth Carling, a senior.

The Greek Games are dedicated each year to a god or goddess. In 1955 the Games were dedicated to Ceres, goddess of the harvest. Both teams fought a good battle in which each showed great ability, but the Athenians proved a bit better than the Spartans.

Even though Greek Games are mainly for sophomores, all who attend enjoy the competition and teamwork of the contestants.

Senior Class Tribute

TWO tragic accidents during the past year claimed the lives of two senior boys. Struck by the death of their classmates, the members of the senior class voted to donate a sum of fifty dollars, from their treasury, to be used to perpetuate the memory of these boys.

The Senior Executive Council met to decide how the class could best pay tribute to its lost friends. It had to be a plan that would commemorate the boys and at the same time help to further the cause of education. The class decided that this money could be used as a loan to worthy students wishing to attend college.

The tribute was given to the Student Loan Fund of the Hempstead Classroom Teachers' Association. The fund was established during the past year to assist graduates of Hempstead High who are attending college and need financial aid. The newly founded organization will expand its services with the addition of such worthy contributions as this token of remembrance.

In accepting the gift from Bob Marcinkowski, president of the senior class, Miss Winter, president of H. C. T. A. stated, "The H. C. T. A. is honored at the request of the senior class to help in establishing a living memorial. We shall be proud to administer your contribution to our Student Loan Fund to the best of our ability."

Established 1858

55 CHASNER STREET

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y.

IVanhoe 6-5000

EACH year before the term's gone by,
Tradition reigns at Hempstead High.
The seniors all in dress parade,
Carry animals bought or made.
The frosh in bonnets and bib-tops
To older gals give lollipops.
Then after class they entertain,
Joy unconfined seems not to wane.
The freshmen march around the gym,
Everyone there is cute and trim.
The senior judges look a while,
Then choose for poise and charm and smile.
The party ends with punch and cake,
Which soon brings on a stomach-ache.
But they are happy and content,
The day has been a great event.
The freshmen heave a great big sigh,
And look as years go swiftly by,
To when they will be on parade,
Sporting animals bought or made.

"Mr. Bones"

FOLLOWING the popular trend toward do-it-yourself projects, Mr. Beckett and eight members of his biology class have undertaken a most unusual one. They are assembling a complete skeleton composed of parts from four un-assembled ones. The students named the skeleton "Mr. Bones."

Professor Edwin Creaser of Hofstra College, whose son Ted is working on the project, presented Mr. Beckett with several thousand human bones. It has been Mr. Beckett's long-time desire to have his students assemble a genuine skeleton for use in biology.

"Mr. Bones" possesses a complex personality for he is both young and old, American and Chinese. Mr. Beckett concludes that the head is possibly that of a man of thirty years because several wisdom teeth hadn't come in.

One of the girls assigned to the skeleton project decided "Mr. Bones" needed a dental check-up. She took him to a dentist. The dentist, after recovering from shock, thought "Mr. Bones" had a beautiful set of teeth.

Once "Mr. Bones" is completed, he will be one of the first such specimens displayed in a high school biology class on Long Island. He should greatly increase the biology students' knowledge of human anatomy.

Custodians

"I'VE locked my key in my locker." "I need a ladder to hang this poster." Many times these cries and others like them are directed towards the custodians by the students. Always willing and able, the custodians seem to come up with a solution. Small jobs are just as important as large ones in making an organization run.

Not only are those on the custodial force efficient but they are cheerful and courteous as well. They are more than willing to help for they are as proud of Hempstead High as the students are. They want the school to be as pleasant a building as possible.

The custodians' job doesn't end when others have departed for a leisurely summer vacation. They continue to work for good results. One of the largest jobs is refinishing the desks, the floors and corridors of our large school. There are many spots to be gone over before the student body returns in the fall.

A vote of thanks to the custodians who keep Hempstead High looking spic and span.

FRED EDEL

Priscilla Tedesco and Chris Sturge decorate for Christmas.

Christmas Comes To H. H. S.

"O LITTLE town of Bethlehem" caroled the clear but gentle voices that echoed through the halls. The Glee Club and the A Cappella Choir gave their traditional renditions of the old and new Christmas Carols.

Wreathes and holly adorned the office and classroom doors. Many classes had cheerful displays which greeted those who entered. The pleasant aroma of pine from the two Christmas trees filled the halls. One tree was outside of Mr. Beddow's office and the other near the boys' gym. They were gaily decorated by Student Council members.

Everyone shared the Christmas spirit and there were homeroom parties galore. Some home economics classes turned apples into jolly Santas with toothpicks for arms and marshmallows for heads. A mysterious Santa wandered through the halls.

The orchestra presented a special Christmas program during homeroom on the last day of school.

There were fleeting thoughts of the long, un-interrupted holidays ahead which put everyone in a gay and carefree mood. Toward the end of the day decorations were taken down and stored away for another year.

Christmas 1955 at H. H. S. had been an unforgettable one.

Roger Cotta, arguing with his conscience.

G. O. Show

"G. O! I've got some wonderful talent." And so entered B. O. (Mel Fox). He was bringing his contribution to the Student Council's annual G. O. Show. It was on November seventeenth and eighteenth that Hoiby (Sam Gold) followed B. O. into the office of G. O. (Roger Cotta), Hoiby's hilarious performance was ended quickly as his melodious tones were muffled through the door.

G. O.'s ever present Conscience (Steve Renner) appeared and this time with a good idea! G. O., a quite prosperous seller of G. O.s, with a wonderful secretary besides (Urva Kissa), could only utter, "Pinch Me I'm Dreaming."

Whether or not G. O. was dreaming we'll never know. One thing we do know though, is that the talent that followed was tremendous. Combining to make a good show were: a duet, an instrumental group, an accordion solo, and a hula. Two memorable acts were those crazy guys and the bathing suit gals. Also included, were several snappy tap routines and vocal solos. Completing the show was the ever-popular charleston.

This year's show, headed by Elaine Maguire, was written and directed by Carole Kozlowski. Miss Newlon also gave a hand in helping the Student Council achieve another success.

Moonlight and roses create a romantic atmosphere for couples at the Junior Prom.

BENEATH a sliver of a moon and twinkling stars, couples floated by in their own private worlds at last year's Junior Prom. This social event, held on June 3 in the boys' gym, highlighted the spring season. It was quite appropriately named "Spring Fantasy."

The gym was transformed into a romantic park at twilight. Gail Barton, the chairman, and her helpers were responsible for the lovely display. Under the supervision of Mr. Chambers, they completed their work without a flaw. Even the lamp posts looked authentic. The committees could quite proudly boast of their efforts in achieving romantic effects.

The couples were captivated by the music of the "Suburbans." Refreshments were served from a vendor's stand with a trellis of roses on either side. It fitted right into the atmosphere of the prom.

At the close of the dance, as the music grew softer, the many couples departed with some souvenirs of the occasion. Many a drowsy head nodded in agreement that the prom had met all expectations.

Yolanda Parra

HEMPSTEAD HIGH SCHOOL was happy to entertain Yolanda Parra of Guatemala for two weeks shortly after Christmas. She visited Hempstead through the Herald Tribune Forum, an annual student exchange program. At Hempstead High, Yolanda visited many classes where she spoke of herself, her country, and her school. She was a guest at the home of Carole Kozlowski, a member of the foreign student committee.

Yolanda is of a family of five: her father, her mother, her two brothers, and herself. Her father is a traveling salesman; her mother runs a tourist shop. The family lives in Puerto Barrios, Guatemala.

Yolanda is studying at the Instituto Normal Casa Central in Guatemala City, where she resides while school is in session from January to October. Although she spends ten to twelve hours studying every day, she finds time for swimming, softball, sewing, cooking, dancing, and music. Two pleasant features of Yolanda's school are a two-hour lunch period and many holidays. Yolanda is majoring in psychology. She will be graduated from the Institute and will become a teacher in October.

Yolanda is happy to have visited Hempstead. She was pleased to learn that she would receive a copy of this Colonial as a reminder of her days here.

Romano Kunz

ROMANO KUNZ of Switzerland visited Hempstead High during the first two weeks of January. He was one of the many students from various countries that visited the U. S. through the Herald Tribune Forum's annual student exchange plan. He was the guest of Bill Ausman, an active Hempstead High junior, while visiting Hempstead.

Romano's home town, Chur, is the capital city of Grisons, the easternmost and largest canton in Switzerland. Although he and his family speak only Italian at home, Romano speaks French, Latin, German and English.

During the school year, Romano's home is the Evangelical Institute in Schiers, the academic high school in which he is now studying. Upon graduation from high school, he will receive military training and then study law for five years. He aspires to become a diplomat.

At school Romano has a full schedule from six in the morning until bedtime. His day is mostly study but gymnastics and sports are not excluded. He enjoys playing the piano, mountain climbing, tennis, swimming, and skiing when he has the time.

Romano, who was chosen by his school through a competitive national examination, has enjoyed his stay here and is glad indeed to have had the opportunity of visiting the United States.

Hempstead Hub-Cat

BETWEEN halves of the February 17th basketball game with Sewanhaka, the new Tiger mascot made his initial appearance at a sports event. He is affectionately known as the Hempstead Hub-Cat. It has been over fifteen years since Hempstead High possessed a tiger costume.

The Student Council spent many hours discussing and planning for the arrival of an authentic-looking tiger costume. The tiger costume was expected in time for the football season. However, the prices most dealers asked were too high. Finally after shopping around, a tiger costume was purchased. It is made of a fabric similar to terrycloth.

Naming the tiger presented a problem. It was suggested that a "Name the Tiger Mascot" contest be held. The motion was passed in the Student Council. Ten judges were selected to choose the winner while students hurried about jotting down names for the contest. The winner, Ted Benjamin, wore the tiger costume to various homerooms in February.

Mr. Beckett, advisor to the Student Council, explained that the task of the "Hub-Cat" is to boost school spirit. To this end it will appear at sports events. We hope that the mascot will give both the team and the spectators an added lift.

In Memoriam

FOR many years Dr. Howard Phipps served as the school physician. His kindly, sympathetic manner made him beloved by students and teachers alike. Therefore it came as a saddening shock to everyone when he died at his home on January 17th of this year, after forty-five years of devoted service to our school and town.

Besides his private practice and school work, he was active in professional organizations. In 1936 he was president of the Nassau County Medical Society. He was also on the staff of Nassau and Meadowbrook Hospitals, and a member of the medical board of Mercy Hospital. A Columbia University Medical School graduate, Dr. Phipps was a member of both the American Medical Association, and the New York State Medical Society.

For us who knew Dr. Phipps, his absence is greatly felt. Our deepest sympathy goes to his family.
